NEW BUS LINE BEGINS TODAY OPERATE HERE

Pacific Electric Belt Line
 Begins Operating With One Bus

ANOTHER TO BE ADDED
 As Soon as Business Warrants, Two Busses Will Be Operated

Today the first bus of the Pacific Electric belt line made the round trip over the route laid out for it by officials of the company in their application for a permit to operate a passenger service as a tributary or feeder line to their electric lines running in and through the city.

For the present the company will operate one bus. This is a Reo speed wagon with a bus body capable of seating about 50 people. As soon as business warrants, another bus will be added. Until such addition is made the car will be in charge of two drivers.

The bus will arrange its schedule to coincide with the schedule on which the company's electric cars are operated. It will be possible to pay the whole fare to Los Angeles on the bus line and receive a transfer to the electric line.

The bus will circle around the north, east and west sections of the city, offering transportation to sections of the city that have hitherto been without any means of reaching the main business arteries of Glendale.

Officials of the Pacific Electric company who are also officials of the Pacific Electric Land company, operators of the bus line, agreed that as soon as business over the new line justified, a second bus would be added. Officials visited Glendale recently and made a survey of traffic conditions. They returned to Los Angeles and it is said they immediately gave an order for the second bus.

TUESDAY CLUB HAS $25 FOR FLOAT FUND

Secretary Rhoades Gratified for Action of Women's Organizations

Secretary Rhoades of the chamber of commerce is greatly impressed by the response from the Tuesday Afternoon club to his appeal for a contribution to the fund for a float at the rose tournament in Pasadena. In spite of the fact that its energies are concentrated on the herculean task of raising funds for the building of a clubhouse, the organization has voted a donation of $25.

Mr. Rhoades feels that this action should be an example to all the organizations of our city who have any civic pride or desire to see Glendale properly represented in that great and beautiful pageant in our sister city.

ROBERT Klier NOW ON POLICE FORCE

Robert J. Klier was appointed patrolman on the Glendale police department Tuesday, to fill the vacancy made by the appointment of Patrolman George Delgado to the rank of detective sergeant. Patrolman Klier has been a resident of Glendale most of the time during the past two years coming here after his discharge from the United States navy, where he served during the world war. He received the appointment from Chief Martin on Tuesday after he had been recommended for the position by several of the leading business and church men of the city.

COLLECT BY WAR?

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—War is the only means by which the United States could collect the $11,000,000,000 foreign debt if foreign nations refused to pay, unless the American government cancels the debt, William C. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, declared in substance, in a letter to Senator Glass, Virginia, placed in the Congressional Record today.

GETS $200,000 AS BALM FOR HEART

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 7.—Rita Jaichner, pretty French girl, who alleges she toured Europe with R. L. Slaughter, Jr., wealthy son of a pioneer Texas cattle man, was awarded damages in excess of $200,000 for breach of promise by Judge J. E. Gilbert here today.

Open Conference Not to Liking of Dr. Crane Tonight

On the editorial page this evening Dr. Frank Crane takes issue with those who believe that conferences should be open and he states his reasons in rather readable language. There is a time for everything he says.

An editorial on "A Warless World" takes the stand that the cherished vision is not unreasonable and may become a reality. "The theory," it is contended, "that devotion to a country involves any form of hatred toward other countries, is not to be defended. It is basically wrong."

Henry James in his comments on the news takes a paragraph to task for calling Dr. Lorenz, the great Vienna specialist, Doc. He asks if it is bright or stupid and answers the question. What he says is interesting and to the point.

James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" tonight points to the work that the united fruit growers of California are doing in the advertising of this state in the great magazines, how they are setting forth the fact that California has tangible and material wealth as well as climate and landscape.

You will find other writers dealing with other topics of interest in this paper this evening. We want you to read the editorial page for the information and pleasure it will give you.

MRS. LOUISE PEETE IN SAN QUENTIN

"Enigma Woman" Takes Up Abode Within Gray
 Walls of Prison

SAN QUENTIN PENITENTIARY, Cal., Dec. 7.—Prisoner 33892 was officially booked for a life stay here at 9:30 a. m. today. The prisoner was Mrs. Louise Peete, convicted of the sensational mystery murder of Jacob C. Dorton, wealthy mining man, in his palatial Catalina street mansion in Los Angeles, October 1920.

Mrs. Peete made no comment as she went through the usual routine of a woman prisoner entering the penitentiary. The stoical attitude which gained her the name of the "enigma woman" during her trial remained with her until the frated doors of a cell in the women's department closed to her—adding one more number to the long list of the "numbered but nameless" within the gray walls of San Quentin.

JACK PERRY WANTS MEET "YOUNG" JOHN

Jack Perry of Pittsburgh, Pa., wrestler who recently defeated "Greek" Bill Leone and is scheduled to meet Stanislaus Zybyszko, world's champion wrestler on February 22 at Madison Square Garden in New York was in Glendale today and through the Glendale Daily Press challenges "Young" John Hackenschmidt, Glendale wrestler to a match. Perry, who weighs in at 200 pounds says that he is anxious to meet Hackenschmidt either in Glendale or in Los Angeles. He trains for 190 pounds.

Big Things for East Side Await Removal of Barrier

By JOHN H. GERRIE
 Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

You all remember the legendary battle between the "Big Enders" and the "Little Enders." Those who argued that an egg should be eaten from the little end lined up against the forces of those who espoused the cause of the big end. It didn't make any difference to the egg how it was eaten. It was all the same egg.

In almost every growing city there arises at some time a contention between the "East Siders" and the "West Siders." If more money be expended upon street improvement in the "West Side" the "East Side" will not be satisfied unless it gets the high school. And if the "East Side" is favored with parks the "West Side" must be compensated by the public library.

But in Glendale the "East Side" seems to have a justifiable grievance. The "West Side" has worn the fine feathers while the "East Side" has dodged in and out of the kitchen in a gingham gown. True, the "West Side" has begun and maintained the reputation of Glendale as a City Beautiful but the "East Side" has cried appealingly: "Just see what I can do if you give me a chance."

And this seems to be the thought back of the smiling optimism of every booster for that part of the city lying east of Brand boulevard: "Just give us a chance!"

Possessing the city hall and the public library and the high school and the Glendale sanitarium and the road to Pasadena it might look on the face of it as if the east side had been given ample chance and had failed to make good. But these favorable elements seem to have been nullified by a single unfavorable feature that has retarded the natural development and growth of an otherwise highly desirable section of this home city.

If you spread out your map of Glendale you will observe two dominant boulevards, one straight through the town to the base of the mountain and the other shooting diagonally across and out through the canyons to the valleys beyond. These two would be picked on the map as the principal thoroughfares of the city and it is a question if Glendale avenue rather than Brand boulevard should not be regarded as Main Street of Glendale.

But Glendale avenue is NOT Main Street, nor anywhere like it, for this simple reason:

Because Glendale avenue at the very point where it ought to be built up with fine hotels, tall office buildings, handsome banks and commodious shops is little more than a RAILROAD YARD, where noisy engines shunt freight cars back and forth on sidings and spur tracks.

Where office buildings and banks OUGHT TO BE are saw mills and lumber yards and small factories and a livery stable.

No wonder the section of the city immediately tributary to Glendale avenue and Broadway has remained stagnant while the great west side has filled rapidly with fine business houses and attractive homes! What bank would build its counting house abutting a railroad, yard or what merchant would put up a big store alongside a lumber

MADALYNN'S WEIRD VISION OF CRIME TOLD BY FRIEND

Told Witness Kennedy Had Not Played Fair With Her

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—Ill and worried, Madalynne Obenchain waited at the county jail today for news of what her friend, Louise M. Wilson, would tell on the witness stand at the murder trial of Arthur C. Burch. Mrs. Mary A. Bailey, a patron of Mrs. Wilson's beauty shop, and a friend of Madalynne, was the first witness called today. She injected a weird note into the case when she told of a dream she had related to Madalynne some weeks before young Kennedy's mysterious death.

"I dreamed Kennedy was to be married," Mrs. Bailey said. "I told Mrs. Obenchain so. She wept. 'I know he is going to die,' she told me. 'I know I am going to be in jail. I cannot explain it all—I only sense it.' Later, at a luncheon, Madalynne told Mrs. Bailey that Kennedy had deceived her.

"He hasn't been square with me," the witness said Madalynne told her. "He was my ideal. It is so hard to be disillusioned."

TWO CARS COLLIDE ONE MAN INJURED

An automobile collision at the intersection of Burchett and Central avenue Tuesday at 4 p. m. resulted in one car turning over and the driver being slightly injured. E. G. Warren, one of the parties in the accident, stated that his car approached the street intersection headed west and the other machine, driven by Gus Rudloff appeared headed South on Central avenue. When the Warren car was almost across the street in the right rear corner of his car, tearing off the fender and raising the wheel from the street. The car driven by Rudloff was turned over and Rudloff slightly injured. He refused to see a doctor and after righting the car drove to his home.

Tuesday Club Puts $25 Into Hands of Sec. Rhoades
 Today

Another name and contribution has been added to the Glendale float fund of honor. It is the Tuesday afternoon club. J. M. Rhoades, secretary of the chamber of commerce, has received a check for $25 as the club's contribution. The honor-roll now reads as follows:

Tuesday Afternoon Club.....$25
 Herbert Smith.....25
 J. M. Rhoades.....5
 Dr. E. V. Hogue.....3
 Gilbert Cowan.....1
 Paul Vissman.....1

This is the honor roll. Who will be the next to be added? Contributions mailed to the chamber of commerce to J. M. Rhoades will be received and the new names will appear on the above list.

DR. LORENZ IS GOING HOME DISAPPOINTED

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Dr. Adolf Lorenz, bloodless orthopedic surgeon, declared today he would return to Vienna and end his activities in the United States because a forticisms heaped upon him by the American surgeons.

"My endeavor to reconcile has failed," the noted Viennese physician declared. "I am sorry. I bear no malice. I shall return to my beloved Vienna. My first mission was to thank the American people for all they have done to help the starving children of Vienna. I did not fail in that trust. But my effort to reconcile has been in vain."

The betrothal of Princess Mary, only daughter of King George and Queen Mary of England, to Viscount Lascelles has been officially announced in London. Viscount Lascelles is the oldest son of the Earl of Harewood. He is 39 years old and won distinction in the World War, being wounded three times and winning the British Distinguished Service Order and the French Croix de Guerre. Princess Mary was 24 years old last April. It was learned from a close friend of the couple that the wedding would take place some time between Christmas and the beginning of the Lenten season.

ALLIED DEBT MAY BE MEANS BRINGING ABOUT HARMONY

Bryan Sees Merit in Allied Debt Cancelled for World Benefit

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN
 (Copyright, 1921, by the United Press)
 The postponement of the question of land disarmament gives time for consideration of the proposals made with a view to aiding in the reduction of armaments.

While local conditions will necessarily play a large part in determining the action taken by each nation, much will depend upon general principles that will apply to all alike.

In other words, the average reduction possible will be as large in proportion as the "will of peace," which, to use Secretary Hughes' language, takes the place of the "will of war." Anything, therefore, which will increase the sense of security will decrease the army estimates just as any suggestion of future wars will tend to increase the army estimates.

Friendship is the only thing that can be substituted for the thing that is the basis of the United States is the only nation that is in a position to contribute largely toward the re-establishment of friendship. As long as the United States demands from the allies the repayment of ten billion dollars loaned, the allies will feel justified in collecting this amount from the enemy nations.

Even if payment to the United States is postponed payment from enemy nations will be expected. Thus the United States may contribute to the condition that will prevent the re-establishment of the friendship necessary to world peace; to cancel the debt in favor of the allies would not produce the desired results.

It might even aggravate the situation and result in the expenditure of the amount in preparation for another war. France justifies the retention of arms on the ground that Germany contemplates aggression. Whether this is true or false can be determined by an investigation—that is, so far as preparation for aggression is concerned. But a reopening of the war depends more upon the spirit of unfriendliness than upon actual preparations. The great question is whether the spirit of friendship can be restored, for without this all peace plans are futile. Can the United States use this indebtedness to re-establish real friendship between the nations at war?

Can reconciliation be effected by an equitable distribution of the ten billion among the European nations, allies and enemies? If so, cannot the United States afford to use a debt of doubtful value to purchase a benefit of incalculable value? If such a use of the debt generates a world disposition towards peace, the United States will soon save more than ten billion by the reductions which it will make possible in army and navy appropriations. The alternate course may cost the United States many times the debt.

STATE'S TREASURER WAS VISITOR HERE CAMPAIGN TOUR

Friend W. Richardson Is Candidate for Governor of California

State Treasurer Friend W. Richardson and Mrs. Richardson visited Glendale today on their way to Pomona and other Southern California cities. Mr. Richardson, who is also president of the California State Press association, an honor he has enjoyed for 19 years, is visiting this section of the state in the interests of his candidacy for governor of California.

Mr. Richardson is traveling by automobile, and his "manager, headquarters and campaign fund" is under his hat, as he expressed it.

"I have no manager other than myself," Mr. Richardson said, "and my headquarters are under my hat and I have no campaign fund."

As state treasurer, Mr. Richardson has been a most efficient officer for a number of years and he has been re-elected from time to time without serious opposition, solely on his record in office. He now feels that he is in a position to know the needs of this great and growing state, and he believes there is too much politics and not enough business in our state government. He sums it up as follows:

"There is need in California for more business and less politics in its government. There is need for a relief from the heavy burdens of taxation. This burden is causing unemployment, stifling industry and driving away new enterprises.

"Three years ago Governor Stephens went before the people on an economic platform. He promised a reduction in the state tax burden. How has that promise been kept? Look at the figures: In 1919, the governor signed bills exceeding $52,000,000. This year he raised the limit to $91,000,000. An increase of 74 per cent in the state tax burden seems to be Governor Stephens' idea of economy.

"If elected, I will strive to give the people an economical, just and efficient government and will give no thought to my own political advancement, or to the building of a political machine. I will be content with one term and hence will not need a political machine."

SOLDIER BONUS WILL PASS SAYS REP. FORDNEY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The treasury's opposition to the soldier's bonus bill will not stop the bill's passage at this session of congress, advocates of the measure in the house declared today.

"Nothing can change me—we will pass the bonus bill," said Representative Fordney, Michigan, chairman of the house ways and means committee.

STATE BOARD MEMBER HERE FOR ADDRESS

School Program Was Not Largely Attended by Citizens

FINE SELECTIONS MUSIC
 Education Week Program
 Last Night Most Interesting

Because the audiences at Glendale high and intermediate schools were not large enough to justify two meetings, those who assembled at the high school Tuesday night joined the crowd at Intermediate, where the program was given to appreciative listeners who demanded encores from all the musicians, and who applauded all the strong points made by the speakers.

On the platform were Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools; David Hibben, president of the board of education; George U. Moyle, principal of the high school; T. D. Watson, high school trustee; V. M. Hollister, president of the Glendale chamber of commerce, and Hon. Stanley P. Wilson, member of the state board of education, orator of the evening.

With a brief speech of explanation, Mr. White introduced the musicians, who gave a really charming program which was worthy the applause it received. It included:

Vocal solo, "My Laddie" (Thayer), by Florence Rattray, with Bonnie Jean Lockwood at the piano, who were recalled for an encore.

Whistling solo, "Valse Parisienne" and an encore number, by Helen White, with Miss Gladys Sharpe at the piano.

Harp solos, "Keel Row" and "Annie Laurie" by Marjorie Bailey, which were enthusiastically received.

Violin solos, "Gypsy Melodies" (Sarasate), and encore number, by Miss Hazel Linkugel, with Miss Marjorie Yarik at the piano.

Mr. White then introduced Mr. Hollister, who commended the action of President Harding in proclaiming

WELFARE BOARD HAD MEETING TO PLAN FOR CHRISTMAS

November Activities of Council Shows Much
 Good Work Done

The regular monthly board meeting of the Welfare committee was held at the city hall Tuesday evening, December 6th, Mrs. E. D. Yard, president, presiding, Mrs. L. W. Sinclair, treasurer; Mrs. R. C. Horner, secretary, and Mrs. C. S. Archer, director, were present. Mr. C. E. Kimlin, vice president, was unable to attend.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved. A general discussion of Christmas work followed. The Welfare Council, consisting of representatives from the churches and different organizations doing welfare work in the city, is an auxiliary to the city welfare bureau. There are at present 29 families, 19 of which are widows, that are being helped by this organization weekly without publicity.

The following is a report of work done during the month of November: Visits to different families, 28; interviews at city hall, 12; employment secured for 15; families assisted during the month, 12; city orders of groceries, $5.58; 490 articles of clothing were given out in one month, value $250; 5 comforts, 2 pillows, value $25; furniture—1 cot, 2 rockers, mattress, table and stove, value $20; 9 checks for relief work amounting to $47.00; 25 jars of canned fruit.

Donations received during the month, 4 comforts, sheets, pillow cases, an abundant supply of clothing, furniture and money.

The officers of this organization wish to thank the churches, P. T. A. federations, Glendale Union High School students, P. E. O. chapters, Masonic organizations and people making private donations.

If anyone knowing of a family needing Christmas cheer should notify Mrs. L. W. Sinclair at the city hall or Mrs. E. D. Yard, phone Glendale 510-J. Anyone wishing to give help in any way please notify the above committee and things will be called for and placed where they do the most good. Tshi welfare council was organized to avoid duplication in giving aid.

New Bungalow—Jenkins & Graham of 208 East Broadway, have completed plans and signed a contract with O. N. Sorenson to build a bungalow on the front of his lot at 724 North Louise street. The same contractors just completed a house and double garage on the rear of Mr. Sorenson's lot.

MRS. M. L. TIGHT HAS CALLED MEETING OF COMMITTEE

Will Devise Ways and Means to Get Funds for Glendale Float

Mrs. M. L. Tight, chairman of the float committee of the chamber of commerce has called a meeting of the committee for next Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock to discuss ways and means of raising sufficient funds to decorate a float for entry in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses on New Year's day. The committee will also meet with the Glendale Business and Professional Women's club on the same night and lay their plans before that organization and ask the club to assist in putting over the campaign to raise funds for the float.

The float committee is considering several plans for the raising of funds to finance the float. The plan that is finding the most favor and seems at present to be the most practicable is the plan to hold a tag day on Saturday, December 17. Nothing definite regarding the holding of such a tag day has been decided upon, however, but will be discussed by the committee and the Business and Professional Women's club at the meeting on Tuesday night.

The float committee announces that about $1800 is required to successfully enter the float in the tournament. For the past two years Glendale's entry has won first prize and L. W. Chobe, who has designed and decorated the winning floats for Glendale and has charge of the work again this year says that if the people of Glendale assist him in the matter of raising funds for the float he is confident that the first prize will be won by Glendale this year for the third time.

The entry of a float in the Pasadena pageant is one of the best advertising schemes for the city that can be devised. This is a fact particularly for Glendale, in as much as it has won the first prize for two successive years and has had pictures of the float circulated throughout the United States by magazines and motion pictures and has gained publicity by winning the prize through various other channels.

The two cups for the winning float are on display at the Glendale chamber of commerce and a place is being reserved for the third cup. It is up to the people of Glendale to do their part in bringing home this cup to fill the vacancy in the opinion of J. M. Rhoades, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

So far the committee has secured about $800 toward the decoration of the float. Of this $800 the city of Glendale contributed $750, the remaining $50, or to be exact, $57 was secured through individual donations.

The chamber of commerce committee states that if every citizen would contribute his or her dollar to the fund the float would be an almost assured success. Let's go. Send in your dollar to J. M. Rhoades at the chamber of commerce and help put over the biggest advertising proposition that the city has ever been offered.

Arts and Crafts.—The Arts and Crafts section of the Tuesday club has postponed further meetings at the city library until December 28. Mrs. Ralph Meeker is curator.

WEALTHY RANCHER'S TRIAL BEGUN TODAY

Preliminary in Strange Case Is Held in Ontario Today

ONTARIO, Calif., Dec. 7.—Firman A. Lucas, wealthy Cucamonga rancher, today faced Judge G. R. Crane in a preliminary hearing of charges involving himself and Mrs. Mary A. Pettinger, Mrs. Pettinger, a comely young woman of 24, appeared at the San Antonio hospital here three weeks ago in a hysterical condition. She accused Lucas, who is 50 years of age, of luring her to his home while his family was away, giving her drugged wine and attempting to attack her.

Three days later she retracted her charges, without explanation to the grand jury, which had been convened to hear the case. District Attorney T. W. Dukworth, not satisfied to let the affair drop, ordered Lucas bound over for a preliminary hearing. The case is creating a sensation throughout the Ontario district. Lucas is a member of a rich and prominent family.

AUTOMOBILE MAY GIVE MURDER CLUE

Blood-Spattered Essex Is Found at Loma Linda Today

SAN BERNARDINO, Dec. 7.—A blood-spattered Essex car, thought to have been the machine driven by gunmen who murdered two policemen in Los Angeles last night, was found near here today. The machine, partly smashed and reeking of liquor, was hidden in shrubbery off a highway at Loma Linda, four miles from here.

A check on the license revealed the car to be the property of Philip Drode, 3120 1/2 Van Buren place, Los Angeles. The seats, upholstery and running board of the machine were covered with bloodstains.

SHERROD'S SHOP IS READY FOR XMAS

Sherrod's Specialty Shop at 207 East Broadway has added some very pretty new things to their Christmas stock. One will find a decidedly new line of silk lingerie, boudoir caps and hostery, linen handkerchiefs, neckwear and many other pretty and useful gifts. Miss Alva St. Clair is in charge of a very dainty line of novelties for milady's boudoir, such as powder compacts in beautifully decorated boxes. A very clever suggestion for Christmas and one that Miss St. Clair has carried out, is decorating with silks, ribbon flowers and pretty ribbon bows the large size Cutex box which contains the ever-useful manicure set. Miss St. Clair will make to order any novelties of this sort one may desire.

Jacksonville.—The jury in the case of Thomas Hysler, Jr., failed to reach a verdict after several hours deliberation and Judge Simmons declared the case a mistrial. Hysler, who is 14, is on trial for the killing of Alvin Harvey, twenty years of age.

Hendershot of Detroit, Mich., who are now living on Melrose avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Bolen from Chicago of the Bolen Realty Co., who live on the corner of La Canada and Wabash way in Verdugo Woodlands. All of them expect to make Glendale their home.

EDITORIALS

BY THE PEOPLE

Editor Glendale Press: A clever writer has told in finest diction in the columns of the Glendale Press, how sorely Glendale needs a handsome civic center—"a heart to beat," he says. Besides this, to my notion, we need the rousing beat of time, a city clock to mark the hours in mellow, far-reaching tones, cheering the morning hours, tolling out the dying day. A clock tower would add to the beauty of the city, the deep tones of the bell striking the hours will help the busy housewife; will echo where the clubwomen would hear and accelerate their business, and in a way bind us altogether in a circle of sound.

We heard of "Big Ben" of London in our childhood, it rings out the hours as it did then, and is heard for many miles.

MRS. ISAAC PEARSON, 644 East Harvard.

Editor Glendale Press: We have read Dr. Gerrie's very interesting and instructive letters in the Glendale Daily Press with great satisfaction. A long time in California enables us to endorse everything he writes and as an admirer of Glendale, wish to thank him.

Is it too late for Glendale to have a park? Many acres are not now necessary and not possible to get, centrally located. Verdugo quite too remote.

We think of no better bit of land for the purpose than that bounded by Colorado, Central and Harvard, and now is the time to secure it before building is general.

Can you tell us where the city fathers that were elected to do their best for Glendale, are hiding?

How could any building or business restriction be removed.

STATE BOARD MAN ORATOR LAST NIGHT

American Education Week and who, on behalf of the chamber of commerce, declared the organization to be heart and soul behind the schools, though he reproached himself and his fellow members for not getting better acquainted with the work they are doing by visiting them often.

Mr. Bailster then presented Stanley P. Wilson, who, by his fine presence and his genial smile, made an instant hit with the audience and held them charmed listeners during his entire discourse, which was frequently interrupted by applause.

It is regrettable that the Press cannot afford space to give Mr. Wilson's lecture in full, as he said many fine things worth remembering. He spoke of his own thought of education in the past as a specialty which only the favored few needed expect to acquire, until he waked up to the fact of its universal and vital relation to the common life. Said he:

"Education is not a hard and fast thing. It changes to meet the changing requirements of life, and nothing is more essentially American than the American public school. Education everywhere and always has been in a state of constant change. Education is the master interest of the world, the soul of civilization, the power behind progress.

Education, as related to the affairs of the world, he considered under three heads, beginning with "preparedness." In the outburst he declared his belief that "militarism is the biggest and blackest blot on civilization."

Speaking of the results of the world war, he said there was a potential loss of life of 43,000,000 human beings. In the case of France alone, so great was the loss that 70 years will be required for recovery. It cost the nations of the world involved, $186,000,000,000. The national debt of Great Britain jumped from three and one-half billions to 39 billions, and that of the United States from one billion to 25 billions.

"I believe," said he, "in world disarmament and I want to see the United States taking the lead in making a scrap heap of deadly machinery and devices of war, but I am not so impractical as to insist that the United States disarm independently. There must be united action. Until that comes, the United States must maintain a condition of adequate preparedness. The United States is likely to repeat the blunder it made before the world war in regard to educational preparedness. America's greatest war is before her and the foe will not be Europe, Asia or Mexico, but ourselves, right here at home. It will be a war against indifference, ignorance, selfishness, and the battleground will be the American public. The preparedness necessary is an intelligent, conscientious, efficient corps of teachers, backed by an awakened community.

"Citizenship is one of the holiest words in human speech. It is a spirit which takes possession of the soul and manifests itself in a life of devotion to the people. To generate and develop this spirit is the great work of the public school, which is the melting pot of American ideals. If you want morality, civic virtues, a high sense of honor, teach these things in the public school. Citizens will not rise higher than their schools. We cannot have good people without good laws, we cannot have good laws without good law-makers, and we cannot have good law-makers without good schools to fit them for law-making. I am not afraid of bolsheviks and I. W. W.'s, but I am afraid of a citizenship that doesn't concern itself with the common good. The interest that people manifest in their schools is a pretty good test of citizenship.

"Education should be applied to service, and America is another name for 'service.' Selfishness can bring no lasting prosperity to the individual, the nation, the world. San Quentin and Folsom are the rendezvous for the chronic getters who want to get without giving something in return. Competition isn't the life of trade. Service is the life of trade. The nations that went down lost their markets because they laid waste the countries around about them and reduced their people to servitude. 'Learn more, serve more,' should be the motto of the public schools. I want to see 'Service' established as part of the curriculum of California schools."

Baron Fitts, past state commander of the American Legion, who had been advertised to speak, was unable to be present.

Casper.—Monk Bailey, O. E. Forester, P. Wilson, Harry Chick are under arrest in connection with high-jacking operations in which they were alleged to have not only relieved their victims of liquor but appropriated $100 in cash and $400 in checks. Indications are that they will be prosecuted on a charge of highway robbery, instead of taking liquor as the first complaint revealed.

tions called "Colonial Courts" and then to try to lessen the evil—painted white!

We are not surprised by the criticism of tourists as they come in, via Central avenue. First is the shock of such disappointment of a fair city, then disgust at the absence of city management that such should be allowed.

Have we an industrial section? One would imagine Brand boulevard was it—so largely given up to the abomination of evil odors, automobile industry causes.

Then the danger to pedestrians. We do not always know who is coming from a shop, but must always watch and listen and if one is dull of hearing as are many, so much greater the danger. Let us brace up and say no, to request for permit for anything industrial in the center of town. Our commercial and professional life is growing and has the right to a fair field.

Can you answer one more question? Where does one get the right to annoy, inconvenience, shut off light and air, have noisy pets, chickens, etc.? These property rights give much trouble and few seem to know where the line is.

Hoping for more light, (Signed) RICHARD HILL WELLS.

MOTION PICTURE SHOT HERE TUESDAY

Traffic was halted for a moment on Brand boulevard Tuesday and a crowd of witnesses had to move back when a scene was filmed in the alleyway just south of the telephone building in a one-reel production put on by the Snub Pollard Comedy company from the Hal Roach studio at Culver City. It was slapstick stuff with Marie Mosquini as feminine lead, Harry Pollard as leading man, Bob Evans second comedy lead and co-director, and Ralph Cedar as director.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—After long service on the Rhine, several hundred doughboys reached here today on the transport Cantigny. With them were 82 wives—eight of them holding babies in their arms.

HOWESTAKES OVER HIS NEW OFFICES

Glendale Realtor Sees Great Things in Store for This City

J. E. Howes, real estate broker, who for the past several weeks has been located at 143 South Brand boulevard, has taken possession of the store-room at 200 West Broadway. Mr. Howes is one of the most active real estate men in Glendale. Upon arriving in Southern California from the east several months ago, Mr. Howes "took in" almost every town and city in this section of the state. Finally he struck Glendale and right here he stayed.

Since closing his office on South Brand boulevard Mr. Howes has greatly enlarged his string of listings and has brought his offerings right up to the minute. Mr. Merry, who is associated with Mr. Howes is a real live wire, when it comes to listing and selling real estate. Everything that would assist in the successful conduct of his business is being installed by Mr. Howes.

"I believe Glendale is the greatest little city in the world," said Mr. Howes, this morning. "From every angle Glendale is superior to any place I have ever been in. I find a greatly increased amount of business in my new location, and we are expecting big things to begin immediately after the holidays. In fact, already things in the realty line are beginning to pick up."

"Is the boss in?" asked the visitor. The office boy, with his chair tilted back and his legs stretched out on the desk, made no reply.

"I asked if the boss was in," said the visitor.

The office boy glanced at him, but remained silent. "Didn't you hear me?" snapped the visitor.

"Of course I heard you," answered the boy, scornfully.

"Then why the dickens didn't you tell me if the boss's in?"

"Now, I ask you," retorted the boy, as he recrossed his legs on the desk, "does it look like it?"

Knoxville.—Officers with bloodhounds are searching for an unknown white man, who in a battle with two officers at 3 a. m. shot and wounded Captain Schneider, a special officer, and then made his escape. The unknown man is believed to be the midnight marauder who for two years and over has been attacking women in their beds.

BASEMENT PLANS APPLAUDED BY BUSINESS MAN

Sees No Reason Why Every Business House Shouldn't Have One

"I am glad to see that Glendale builders have finally seen the wisdom of putting basements under their buildings," said David Gregg of the firm of Neale & Gregg Tuesday afternoon as he watched the steam shovel hitting out huge shovelfuls of dirt from the site of the new Pendroy Dry Goods store.

Mr. Gregg continued, "It has always seemed foolish to me for builders to erect store and business blocks in Glendale without putting in a basement under the entire building. A basement under a store doubles the floor space and adds to the efficiency of the building. It seems foolish not to build a basement under store buildings any place but it seems to me that it is doubly foolish or rather say overlooking an opportunity not to have basements in Glendale where the formation of the soil is such that the digging of a basement is comparatively an easy matter.

"If conditions were such that the basement would have to be dug by hand or the soil formation were such that to dig a basement would require the blasting away of rocks there would be an excuse for having no basements, but here in Glendale the soil is easily removed and the steam shovel that is digging the basement for the new Pendroy Dry Goods store makes the task of digging a basement a comparatively easy task.

"I have watched the monster shovel at work at the corner of Brand boulevard and Harvard street and I have marveled at the ease with which it removes dirt. It requires only five scoopsful for the shovel to fill a large truck with dirt. To be more exact, the steam shovel removes a truckful of dirt in less than five minutes. With such facilities at hand it is impossible for the average business man to see the practicability of having a basement under his store or business block. When the firm of Neale & Gregg find it necessary to erect a new building I can assure you that it will have a basement under the entire store.

"When Coker and Taylor erected their building on South Brand boulevard they had a basement dug under a portion of the building but the Ambrosini Hotel company that first saw the practicability of having a basement under the entire building, Messrs. Huntley and Evans are following suit with their building that will have a basement under the entire building and I hope that in the future that all business blocks will follow the lead of these two organizations."

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

DISTRACTIONS AND ABSTRACTIONS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

Janet King had been ill so often that she was developing a sense of humor and of optimism. This sometimes happens. But she was also susceptible to the appeal to the senses. And she hated monotony.

So, when during her convalescence from bronchitis, her sister, who was taking care of her, offered her milk toast and a poached egg for the third night in succession, she declined it and begged, instead, for a cup of soup.

"Then, Mabel," she said, sipping the soup, "I am going to tell you a story."

"Once I had a nurse taking care of me when I was ill. I had been ordered powder rubs after my evening bath, and my nurse would sprinkle a little powder on one spot on my arm, rub it for twenty minutes, talking the while so entertainingly that I, too, forgot there was more of the third spot on my arm, and then she would put the powder away, and tuck me in for the night."

Sisters Talk Things Over
"Absent-minded?" asked the sister. "I thought so. And I was reluctant to tell her about this monotonous little habit—lacking courage, I suppose. Otherwise, she was a dear, and most efficient."

"And I, too, have failed, in some way," said her listener. "I know your little parable is an earthly story with a heavenly meaning. Please tell me about my little habit! I never was any good at mind reading, my dear. And being a nurse seems to have something almost akin to second sight about it. I confess I am rather useless."

Janet put her cup down. "My dear, you have offered me a poached egg and milk toast, morning and evening for three days. Not to mention custard twice at noon, and an egg-nog yesterday, as well as an orange-albumen today."

Something That Is Different
The sister looked at her in contrition.

"I am sorry," she said. "That's what comes of trying to use up the three dozen fresh eggs I got from the farm, and trying to feed you nourishing food. The doctor said that when one was convalescing from bronchitis, one must have quantities of nourishing food. And eggs and milk are so good for you. I was thinking only of your material needs."

"And I appreciate it," smiled Janet. "But being in bed, and confined to four corners of a room, as well as exhausting one's imagination as a means of entertainment, makes one susceptible to the little things that are of the earth, earthy—and in this case, of the egg, eggy. I am ashamed to say that I want to be appealed to. I want something that looks different, whether it is or not. I just couldn't bear to raise the corner of that gold-and-white toast dish another time, and to see a poached egg with a dab of butter on it marooned on a square of toast! And as for milk toast—if the toast had even been cut in diamond shapes instead of squares, it might have found favor in my eyes. But it's the endless monotony of seeing the same thing at the same time night after night, or day after day. And it is unkind of me to fuss about it, I suppose, but so much depends upon the appeal to the eye when one is playing invalid."

And the sister, who knew quite well that Janet had been very sick and was not "playing invalid," was very careful to remember after that how easily her own abstraction might result in near-distraction for the sister who was convalescing.

FAIRVIEW BEGINS BECOME ACTIVE

Harry M. Miller, Glendale real estate agent and justice of the peace for Burbank township, announces that he has sold a lot on the corner of Laurel street and Sixth street to C. H. Little of 446 West Harvard. This lot is subdivided by Hamilton and Hepburn and annexed to the city of Glendale by a special election held last week. Mr. Little announces that he expects to start building on his new property as soon as possible.

Met With Injury.—Mr. and Mrs. T. Hambacher of Glendale returned Tuesday from an automobile trip to San Diego and Old Mexico. They had a fine trip and only one accident occurred. Their car was slightly damaged in a collision with an automobile truck while on their way home. Pieces of glass from a broken deflector injured Mrs. Hambacher's hand.

New Realty Firm.—A new real estate firm that is finding the classified columns of the Glendale Daily Press most helpful is that of Dodson & Formoe, 305-07 South Brand. Mr. Dodson has been a telegraph operator for many years and Mr. Formoe a city mail carrier for a long time. Both felt the need of a change of occupation and they are making good. Both have many friends and they are worthy of encouragement.

Held for Trial.—Jessie Wylie appeared in Police Judge F. H. Lowe's court Tuesday for preliminary hearing on a charge of murder. She had been held in the Los Angeles county jail without bond for the alleged murder of her new-born baby, whose body was found November 4 in a garage on San Fernando road. After Jessie Wylie's hearing on Tuesday the charge of murder was changed from murder to manslaughter and her bond was set at $2000. She was unable to supply the bond and was remanded to the county jail.

FIRST AMERICAN PATIENT OF DR. LORENZ

Miss Mary Moore.

Dr. Adolf Lorenz.

Miss Mary Moore, pretty New York actress, was the first American patient of Prof. Adolf Lorenz, the famous Austrian "bloodless surgeon," who is now visiting the United States on a mission of mercy. Miss Moore is a patient in the Broad Street hospital, where she was operated on for a broken neck. She was injured in an automobile accident. Dr. Lorenz was called in to observe her case, and the operating surgeons followed his advice for resetting the misplaced vertebrae. She is reported on a fair way to recovery. The diagram portrays the area affected by the auto accident in which Miss Moore was injured.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

FINE SILK FLAG FOR INTERMEDIATE GRADE

Pupils of B 84 of the Intermediate were given a surprise and reward for their work in enlisting new members for the P. T. A. of that school Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. H. L. Tepe, class mother, walked into the class room with a fine silk flag on one arm and a picture under the other. The room resounded with exclamations of joy from the children who realized they had won two great victories in P. T. A. work.

Not only had they registered the largest percentage of new members but also the highest percentage of father members during their month's work. The picture passes each month to the class showing the highest percentage of membership while the flag is the reward for the highest percentage of fathers enrolled.

There has been keen rivalry between classes, some losing by a very small margin.

Because of the keen interest pupils have taken in the work which has brought such a happy result to the class, the class mother has promised each child a Christmas surprise. The class will do all in its power to retain these two trophies for the month to come was proved by the many requests for membership blanks to be taken home by pupils.

On behalf of the class Mr. Alvas, the class teacher, thanked Mrs. Tepe for untiring efforts to help the class to achieve this victory and expressed the hope that each child would hereafter co-operate with the room mother for mutual help and benefit.

VIRGINIA FARROW HAS BIRTHDAY PARTY

On Saturday Mrs. C. G. Farrow entertained at a children's party in celebration of the ninth birthday anniversary of her daughter Virginia. The house and refreshment table were decorated in the holiday colors, ray red streamers being festooned from chandelier to the corners of the room. Red and green featured the place cards and nut baskets, and the table was centered with a mound of imitation snow balls, one of which contained souvenirs for the participants in the party. A place of honor was given to the birthday cake which bore a holly decoration in frosting.

Games were played and were followed by an impromptu program to which each guest contributed. Isabel Livingstone danced and the other children sang or played upon the piano. Guests were Dorothy Clark, Dicksy Lane, Isabel Livingstone, Katherine Henry, Narcisse Truitt, Ruth Lane, Mildred Quinn, Margaret Handley, Dorothy Watton, Virginia Farrow and Mortimer Ballath, whose birthday also fell on Saturday.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS HAVE MEETING

The monthly social meeting of Mary Jone Gillette tent, Daughters of Veterans, took place Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. A. K. Crawford at 301 North Cedar street. The officers of the past year, who will be resigning their posts to the newly elected officers in a short time, were guests of honor. It was an entirely informal social evening with no program except some music, the members busying themselves with their Christmas fancy work while they visited. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening. The next regular meeting of the tent will take place next Tuesday evening in the American Legion hall.

LADIES' AID MET AT CENTRAL PARSONAGE

A very delightful social meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Central Avenue Methodist church was enjoyed Tuesday afternoon at the parsonage.

Biggs, was followed by vocal numbers by the Ladies' Aid quartet, composed of Mrs. Framm, Miss Tisdale, Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Brink. Mrs. Tisdale who is a gifted elocutionist, then read most charmingly a Christmas story. Refreshments were then served and a very pleasant social hour enjoyed.

TUESDAY BUSY DAY FOR PRESBYTERIANS

Tuesday was a busy day at the Glendale Presbyterian church as the women of the church met in the morning to tie the comforters for which they have taken orders. Each member brought her lunch and in the afternoon attended a meeting of the executive board of the women's societies at which many matters of interest were discussed.

The weekly Bible school which is held Tuesday afternoons from 3:30 to 4:30 under direction of Miss Fletcher, was held as usual.

ALL-DAY MEETING CHAPTER A. H., P. E. O.

An all-day meeting of Chapter A. H., P. E. O. was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. H. Webster, 1020 South Central avenue, it being a monthly work day. There were about 20 ladies present and they spent their time tying a quilt for the Monte Vista home.

This meeting was the last to be held until after the holidays. At noon the hostess served a hot dish, each member bringing sandwiches for their own lunch.

LODGES - CLUBS - CHURCHES

OPEN FORUM TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB

This week's meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon Club was the open forum, and several visitors were present, including City Manager Reeves, Councilman Clarence Kimball and Secretary James L. Rhoades of the chamber of commerce.

Mrs. Charles Hutchinson presided, as usual, and introduced as the first speaker Miss Dorothy Poppy of the high school, who explained the purpose of American Education Week to arouse the American people to the importance of the work and needs of the public schools. She invited present to visit the schools, saying, "The doors always stand ajar, especially this week. We want you to come and see if we are reaching the standards you expect us to attain. We shall expect a houseful every day."

Mrs. Hutchinson then called upon Mr. Jessie A. Russell, tell of the Southwest, which is visiting this week in Riverside for the purpose of discussing the Boulder Creek dam proposition and other great projects. The doctor stated his aim is to promote all matters of general interest and benefit to the state of Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico and California.

Secretary of the Interior Fall spoke Friday Saturday, and Mr. Hoover on Saturday, and it would be possible for her to secure a few reserve tickets for members who might desire to attend.

Sheriff Wm. B. Traeger of Los Angeles was then introduced as the first of a trio of county officials who addressed the club. He said he would specialize on that feature of the office which has caused him the most concern, the county jail, which was built 13 years ago when the county had a population of only 10,000, built to accommodate 200 in the belief it would be adequate for 10 years, but which now has a daily average of 400 prisoners, with one room, six by ten feet, in which they bathe them. He described its narrow corridors and its defects, and said it has always been his belief that the effort of prisons should be to release men better physically, morally than when they went in, and for that reason he has been eager to give men a chance to rehabilitate themselves, believing that the majority reached jail by reason of misfortune rather than vice.

He is the right, he declared, to take away the liberty of men who break laws, but not to put them into conditions which will make them worse.

He then spoke of the honor camps in which groups of prisoners have been sent with a couple of guards to construct them in the county work they are doing, but who are left to themselves at night, bound only by the word of honor. For their services the county pays 50 cents a day, and if they have done good work, when their sentence is completed they are given employment by the county at $4 a day. The experiment, which has been a success, is being carried a step farther in a new camp where the men are constructing roads by themselves instead of under the direction of the county road department. The conversion of the inmate by proper treatment into a citizen should be the purpose of the jail, he declared.

Mr. McLaughlin spoke as the representative of W. O. Martin, head of county charities, which include the county farm, and the county hospital, which has a capacity for 950 patients and now has 1161. He dwelt particularly on the need of relief, which city and county extend and by which they endeavor to salvage the helpless poor and restore them to independence by helping them to discover what they are good for. He gave interesting examples of astonishing results which have been achieved, and in that connection, told of the salting of paper and garments, which in turn had furnished employment to the poor. Paper worth $3 a ton had been put through shredding machines, which old men were able to operate and the produce sold for $10 a ton to merchants for packing purposes. It also furnished material for cheap mattresses to lift the prisoners off the stone floors.

Supervisor J. B. Bean, the last speaker, told of his investigations in company with Supervisor Cogswell of jails of the East and prison methods, which proved to him that California is 20 years behind most of the states, which put their prisoners to work instead of keeping them in demoralizing idleness. It is costing the people of California $1.25 a day to care for the prisoners in its jails, he said. In Pennsylvania the cost is a little over 23 cents a day, because its prisoners are put to work and taught to do something useful.

Mr. Bean then described the improvements that are necessary to relieve conditions at the county hospital, the county farm, the county jail and other county conditions, and of the bond election it will be necessary to call to secure them. Said he: "We ought to be spending $2,000,000 for a county hospital and $500,000 for a county farm to house the indigent poor." He described the plans for the new city and county jail, or "hall of justice," which is planned, to cost $2,500,000, and which will house the criminal courts. He ended with an appeal to support the bond issues when called. We are facing a serious condition, he declared, because people are coming here from all over the world and we are compelled to take care of them.

KNIGHTS PYTHIAS ELECTION OFFICERS

At the three o'clock meeting of the Knights of Pythias lodge Tuesday night in Castle hall, the rank of Page was put on for quite a large class, and this was followed by the election of officers for the coming year, which resulted as follows:

Chancellor commander, C. S. Nicholson; vice chancellor, E. R. Best, prelate, M. K. Edwards; master of works, M. A. Palmer; keeper of records and seal, Frank E. Peters; master of exchequer, E. S. Melzer; master of finance, Claud Berger; master of arms, E. H. Rehberg; inner guard, John H. Collage; outer guard, Geo. A. Moore; trustee, C. S. Nicholson; past chancellor, E. E. Fram.

The last Tuesday in December the lodge will put on the Imperial degree. Another meeting of interest will be its Christmas party, when there will be a tree for the children and a general social good time.

SUNSET CANYON CARD CLUB ORGANIZED

One of the new social bodies recently organized in Burbank is the Sunset Canyon Card Club, which is quite exclusive in its membership and practice. It is a luncheon club and elaborate prizes are bestowed upon the winners. Its meetings are held twice a month on Wednesday afternoons, and its membership, which is limited to 16, includes Mrs. George Wilson, Mrs. Philbrick, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Charles Lovejoy, Mrs. Herman, Dr. Zeis, past president of the Burbank Women's Club, Mrs. Jackman and others.

MRS. W. L. ANDREWS HOSTESS AT CARDS

Last Friday evening Mrs. W. L. Andrews of 1159 Providencia street, Burbank, entertained with a five hundred party of four tables. While high winds made some of the members of the company nervous, they recovered from their fears and the affair was a great social success. Besides cards there were vocal numbers by Miss Nina Veach, Mrs. Lovejoy and the hostess.

A delicious supper was served late in the evening, the guest list including Mr. and Mrs. Herman, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Jackman, Mr. and Mrs. Lovejoy, Mr. and Mrs. Watson, and Miss Nina Veach of Hollywood.

CHRISTIAN CIRCLE CLUB MEETING

The Christian Circle Club met last evening at the Baptist church with 76 members present. A splendid supper was served by the ladies of the Presbyterian church, which was enjoyed by all those present. Roll call followed by all those present. Roll call was taken, and Mrs. No. 1 having 18 members present, squad No. 2 had 15, squad No. 3 had 13 present, and No. 4, 10 girls.

A surprise is being planned for Christmas which promises to be of unusual interest. After the business meeting the regular Bible meeting was enjoyed, led by Miss Soper.

Any girl is cordially invited to attend these meetings at the Baptist church, Tuesday evenings at 5:30.

R. T. W. CLASS HELD MEETING

The R. T. W. class of the First Baptist church held its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Roger Bentley, 715 North Central avenue. Devotions were led by the president, Mrs. Jewsbury, and a short business meeting followed. Reports on the work of the past year were read by Mrs. Jennie Dossie, teacher of the class, and by Mrs. Grover Adams.

The afternoon was spent in making bean bags for the social center to be sent over to the missions for use in their Christmas work. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge, Mrs. Fred Abbey, Mrs. H. T. Arnold and Mrs. William Read. The next meeting of the class will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Ray Bentley, 1361 North Columbus avenue.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR MISS REITERMAN

Mrs. Harriett F. Frank and daughter, Miss Alice Frank, of 1558 East Wilson avenue, entertained Saturday night with a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Mabel Reiterman, who will become the bride of Harrison Frank on December 17. The dinner table was centered with a goose and gander dressed as bride and groom, and other decorations were orange blossoms and fern.

Forty guests were present. An enjoyable evening was spent in games, followed by an interesting program in which Miss Viola Yorba sang several songs, accompanied by Miss Reiterman at the piano. Harry James of Los Angeles gave several clever monologues. The guest of honor was the recipient of many pretty and useful gifts.

MISS IDA POTTER TO BE BRIDE TODAY

This evening at 8:30 o'clock Miss Ida Potter, one of the most attractive capable and popular young women of Glendale, will become the bride of Jesse Flower at the home of the bride, 906 East Harvard.

Miss Potter is the daughter of Mrs. Maude L. Potter. She has been a resident of the city for about ten years, was graduated from Glendale High and for the past three years has been in the employ of Barker Bros. of Los Angeles.

Mr. Flower is one of the most popular young men in Glendale's business world. He left the firm of Cornwell & Kelly for overseas service in the world war, and when he returned they were glad to receive him back into their service. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Flower, former residents of this city.

The ceremony is to take place under a floral arch in front of the fireplace in the living room, which will be decorated in the Christmas colors with greenery and flowers.

The pretty bride will be gowned in white satin trimmed with imported Spanish lace, will wear the conventional wedding veil crowned with orange blossoms and carry a bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. Attending her as matron of honor will be Mrs. John D. Stauffer, who will be gowned in pink and carry pink Cecil Brunner roses.

Little Eleanor and Evelyn Flower, nieces of the groom, will act as flower girls and will be dressed in pink and blue organdie, their flower baskets being filled with sweet peas.

George A. Potter, oldest brother of the bride, will give her in marriage and another brother, Charles M. Potter, will act as best man.

Following the ceremony wedding refreshments will be served.

The young people will leave the same night on a honeymoon of a fortnight or more, and on their return will be ready to receive their friends in the new home which has been built and completely furnished by the bridegroom at 1129 East Maple street, where their many beautiful gifts of silver, cut glass, china, linen, bedding, furniture, etc., will find an appropriate setting.

About one hundred guests from Glendale, Los Angeles, Santa Monica, Venice, Pasadena and South Pasadena, will attend the wedding, also Mrs. Mary Wilcoxen, from St. Louis aunt of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mercer from Chicago, cousins of Mrs. Potter.

BOTSFORD HOME SCENE OF MEETING

The regular meeting of the Foot-hill Improvement association was held Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Botsford on Glenwood road. The meeting was held at their home on account of the warehouse, where the meetings are usually held, having been blown down Friday night.

A petition was circulated regarding mail for Burbank being received through Glendale instead of the rural delivery. Other propositions taken up were the Eighth street proposition, the continuation of the Kenneth road, making it jog into Eighth street, and the street light matter.

The association wishes it announced that as an association they will not have anything to do with the high school bond issue. There are those in the association who have joined others of the west side and formed an association called the "Greater Glendale Improvement association."

EASTS ATTEND DINNER; MEET GEORGE ADE

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. East of 121 West Lexington drive attended a dinner Tuesday night given by the alumni of Purdue University at the Men's City Club. The principal speaker of the evening was George Ade, the humorist, who graduated from Purdue in the class of 1887.

Other interesting speakers were H. T. Cory and Dean Benjamin, who was dean of the school of engineering for 30 years and who now resides in Altadena.

ENTERTAINED CLASS INTERMEDIATE LATIN

Within the week, Mrs. R. C. Hornor entertained at her home, 432 West Broadway, members of the Latin class of the eight grade of Intermediate, and their teacher, Miss Francis E. Jackson. Her house was decorated in the Christmas colors. The young people entertained themselves with games, after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

SISTERHOOD CLASS MEETS THURSDAY

Members of the Sisterhood class of the First Methodist church will meet in the social hall of the church Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock for a business session and at 6:30, dinner will be served in the banquet hall to members, who are permitted to invite husbands and friends.

The dinner will be followed by a social evening, the committee in charge being Mrs. D. D. Haines, Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. L. T. Clover.

Mrs. Harriett F. Frank and daughter, Miss Alice Frank, of 1558 East Wilson avenue had as their dinner guests Sunday Mrs. R. W. Meeker of Glendale and Harry James of Los Angeles.

DO YOU KNOW I REALLY CAN'T

think of anything nicer than a record order on the NEW ARTISTIC BRUNSWICK SHOPPE, 126 South Brand boulevard, when you're undecided what to give for a Christmas present! They may be bought in any number of different denominations—and when presented at the Brunswick Shop the holder may select just what she most ideal way to make a happy gift!

The Brunswick Shoppe carries everything imaginable in the musical line—from phonograph needles and dainty record brushes to the famous Buescher Saxophones! And, by the way, all boys are hoping some day to be able to play a musical instrument! Why not start your son this Christmas with a dandy banjo or one of those wonderful saxophones? They will arrange convenient terms for you at the Brunswick Shoppe, and besides I think its such an advantage for a boy to have mastered at least one such instrument, don't you?

For the wee little tots there are the marvelous Bubble Books—the books that sing! They have three records and three little stories in each—and there's a wide selection from which you may choose!

You still have time to avail yourself of the opportunity of selecting your phonograph—paying a deposit of $1 and having it delivered at any convenient time—Christmas eve. The Brunswick Shoppe will be making deliveries 'till midnight. They have some new Ann Models that are simply wonderful—a most graceful addition to any home.

Paris women plait their hair into a number of small tresses, which are wound tight round the head in a fashion which distinctly recalls mid-Victorian prints.

EVERYONE'S TALKING ABOUT

the beautiful new dolls which are a part of a recent shipment of Christmas toys at FISHER'S VARIETY STORE—212 East Broadway! There are wonderful jointed dolls with bisque or kid bodies, sleeping eyes, lovely hair and the prettiest of faces! And Fisher's prices, too, as you know, are unusually low! Then, for both the little tots and the older youngster you'll find a most worthwhile assortment of books—representing our best known children's authors. Both boys and girls of all ages and tastes may be suited to a "T" in the gift line at Fisher's Variety Store.

Small furs are much in evidence. These include stone and baum marten, Hudson Bay and Russian sable, fisher and fox. Small choker collars also are worn.

FOR THE MAN WHO IS PUZZLED

to know just what to buy for "her" Christmas present—HATZ'S, of 132 South Brand boulevard—the shop for Correct Women's Wear, offers many pleasing suggestions! There are beautiful silk kimonos in pink, orchid and apricot shades and wonderful break-fast caps to match in dainty crepe and lace combinations. Silk underwear is sure to please her—especially when bought at Hatz's—for their new designs and new colorings in camisoles, teddies and gowns are really irresistible. Then, too, in the glove silk underwear they recommend most strongly "Kaysers" and "Luxite" in the newest and most popular weaves and in such favored colors as Nile, sky, and flesh.

Kid gloves, silk hosiery, purses and handkerchiefs as displayed by Hatz's are also receiving much favorable comment. Stop in and look over their wonderful stock of Christmas suggestions—they have everything that's pretty and practical to delight the heart of every woman who loves dainty things about her!

A dress of burnt orange linen has collar and cuffs of Madeira embroidery.

YOU'D BETTER PHONE Mrs. Billig at the BROADWAY BEAUTY PARLOR, 214 East Broadway, and make an appointment when you need a shampoo! And speaking of shampoos—you know your hair will be just ever so much prettier—lighter, fluffier, and wavier—if you have it shampooed it each week. Then, too, you know, she gives a special tonic shampoo that is simply wonderful for dandruff—why it will eliminate every speck of it in just no time at all! Mrs. Billig is known far and wide for her excellent manicures and facials. But if you take my advice, you will make an appointment in advance, for the Broadway Beauty Parlor is fast gaining in well-merited popularity!

Animal scarfs are round and closed at the back.

I JUST LOVE TO STOP IN at the YARBROUGH HAT SHOPPE, 108 West Broadway, and look around enough their wonderful stock of fine trimmed hats—and the lovely flower Yuletide remembrances! Oh, yes, Mrs. Yarbrough has a beautiful line of corsages, boutonnieres, and tiny coat-collars and fur bouquets—all attractively done up in Christmas gift boxes! And have you been in to see Miss Bernice yet? Really you must stop in and have her married your hair—your hair is not much difference it makes in one's appearance! She has fitted up a most attractive shop in with Mrs. Yarbrough, where she specializes on marcelling and hair-dressing.

A great deal of pleating is being used this spring. Skirts are pleated in group effect or all over.

YOU'LL FIND JUST ever and ever so many wonderful gifts at the ENTERPRISE FURNITURE CO. of 216 East Broadway. They are gifts of beauty as well as utility—big, comfy easy chairs for father; beautiful, silken shaded lamps for mother; chests for sister; while for baby "Brud" there are the cute little kidie cars! Yes, gifts both large and small—gifts for everyone—and all are gifts worth having at prices you can afford to pay! Stop in at the Enterprise Furniture Co. store and look over their stock!

White pique flit, frilled lingerie cuffs and jabot are now popular.

OWING TO THE FACT THAT GLENN R. DOLBERG of 206½ East Broadway has a most complete and up-to-date equipment for finishing photos he will be able to deliver, the Saturday before Christmas, all photographs taken on or before December 19th! Isn't that the same news? For you know Mr. Dolberg takes quite the most wonderful pictures of any one I have ever known! The poses are simply perfect—and the finishes always most artistic!

JUST THE HOLIDAY GIFT OF gracious charm you'll find at the GLENDALE ELECTRIC CO. of 132 North Brand boulevard! Gifts that delightfully express that unity of beauty and usefulness—the essential virtues of the ideal gift are their wonderful electrical appliances! There are good-looking and graceful percolators and urns; the very latest reversible toasters, handy grills, unique waffle irons, curling irons and just any number of other interesting and acceptable suggestions. Ten, too, they have an admirable stock of attractive lamps and electrical fixtures—tasteful pieces to delight the heart of every home-maker!

Big Things Ahead for East Side

yard or what home-seeker would care to have his domicile neighboring a livery stable?

An entire section of the city, that naturally would have been occupied by some of the finest residences in the valley, has been held back by the obstacles named. It is the SINGLE BLOT upon the otherwise perfect lay-out of the city and its cost to property owners of the district cannot be easily estimated.

It is true that officials of the railroad concerned are planning electrification of their line but that will not remove the freight cars from Glendale avenue. It is true that owners of some of the lumber yards and factories are agreeable to removal to the San Fernando industrial area but they haven't started to get away yet. It is true that the livery stable has been ordered off the ground it occupies but to date it still is there. It is true also that big development plans await these several removals and, in the interests of such it ought to be possible for the officials of this enlightened municipality to HASTEN THE CLEANING UP.

Spencer Robinson, the mayor, who has a magnificent seventy-seven-acre residential tract on the hills above beautiful Sycamore canyon which he plans soon to put on the market, himself is a sufferer from the unsightly gateway to his property, though in his desire to avoid hardships for others he favors allowing small industries, such as laundries and jobbing houses, to remain in the Glendale avenue district.

"But lumber yards and mills and factories that make a lot of smoke or noise or take up a lot of ground ought to be removed to the industrial area," the mayor said this morning. "Of course," he added, "electrification of the railroad will improve conditions on the avenue."

One plucky woman has been fighting the intrusion of manufacturing plants in the Glendale avenue district for years. She, you will have guessed, is Mrs. M. L. Tight, one of the largest operators in east side realty in the city.

"Glendale boulevard," she said, "is the only through road from the Second avenue tunnel in Los Angeles to the Verdugo canyon road and the country beyond. It is the main line of a large district of this city and it is a crime to block progress in that entire section by conditions existing at the most crucial point in the avenue."

Strong faith in a brilliant future for east side property is evidenced in at least two notable cases. At the northeast corner of Glendale avenue and Broadway, A. Ambrosini has begun work on the foundations for his proposed five-story brick and cement hotel to contain 300 rooms and baths, at an estimated cost of nearly $500,000. At Colorado street and Verdugo road a group of Minneapolis capitalists have acquired 26 acres of Meeker's Orange Manor tract and in one week sold forty lots at prices ranging from $750 to $1600. In the group are the Thorpe brothers, well known Minnesota capitalists; R. L. Rudwick, former realty buyer for Armour & Co.; A. W. Wardenock and F. W. Knappen, formerly of Minneapolis. They look for big developments in that section of the city.

Several big things are being planned for the east side but in each case actual work is awaiting REMOVAL OF THE OBSTACLES in the very heart of the district.

C. E. SOCIETY HELD ANNUAL ELECTION

Directory for Tujunga Is Now Being Planned by Citizens

TUJUNGA, Dec. 7.—The following officers have been elected for the ensuing year by the C. E. society: Robert Smellie, president; Marcella Greer, secretary; Alice Smellie, treasurer.

Don Wieman, a student at the University of Michigan, has just returned to his home in this city for a visit with his parents.

Plans are being discussed in Tujunga for the financing of a directory of the city. The growth of the community has created a demand for a directory and it is thought that as soon as plans are formulated to finance the undertaking, such a book will be prepared.

Addison Wells has been elected president of the Greater Tujunga club. At a recent meeting of the organization it was decided to hold the club meetings in Bolton hall on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

The high winds of Saturday and Sunday left their mark in Tujunga. The house on the property owned by T. Garrey on Pine street was tipped over at an angle of 45 degrees by the playful breeze. The house was vacant at the time. Aside from the turning over of the Garrey house there was little damage done in the town.

NAZIMOVA STARS IN GREAT CAMILLE

Costumes Designed by Artist Gives Her Inspiration She Declares

The enthusiastic tributes which millions have paid the recent productions of the inimitable actress, Nazimova, stamp her as the motion picture sensation of the day. It is the public acclaim of its recognition of the fact that Nazimova is not only a great actress, but a supreme artist, the mistress of her art.

Now she portrays a character more familiar than any of the others to the vast army of theater-goers and lovers of literature in presenting on the screen her version of "Camille," from the world-famous story by Alexandre Dumas, the younger. It is at the T. D. and L. theater today. The picture of this great story of love and sacrifice, which on the stage and in the opera has thrilled multitudes in every country, is a role superbly suited to the greatest emotional actress.

In her version Nazimova has given free rein to her artistic imagination in designing unusual creations. "My costumes inspire me in my acting," she says the star. "In pictures, where I lack the audiences to applaud my efforts, I must feel absolutely in rapport with my role, and this feeling I obtain by having my costume perfectly express the character I am playing."

Nazimova came to this country from Russia some sixteen years ago with Paul Orlemer, also a Russian player. Richard Watson Gilder and Robert Underwood Johnson, former Ambassador to Italy, first became interested in her work while she was playing in a little East Side theater in New York, and acclaimed her in the newspapers as a new genius. Jeannette Gilder, sister of Richard Gilder, introduced her to Lee Shubert, who was her first manager. He persuaded Caroline Harris, the actress and mother of Richard Barthelmess, to teach Nazimova English and in less than five months she was mistress of our language, and began an unbroken record of successes on the English speaking stage.

"Camille" was adapted by June Mathis and directed by Ray C. Smallwood. Natacha Rambova was art director; Rudolph J. Bergquist, photographer and Joseph Calder, technical director.

GERMAN BANK BROKE

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—The Pfälzer bank, one of the most important in South Germany, collapsed today. Speculation by confidential clerks is attributed as the cause. The bank had a deficit of 345,000,000 marks.

AMAR INVESTMENT CO. MAKES RECORD

Sells Thirty-five Building Lots In One Day Recently

The Amar Investment Company, of East Broadway, made a record in Glendale for the sale of lots, recently. In one day this firm disposed of 35 building lots, the total valuation of these being more than $20,000. The lots that were sold were all located in the Goodwin tract No. 644, which lies north of Park avenue on the west side of the Southern Pacific tracks.

Most of these lots were sold to local people whose intention is to construct homes on their new holdings in the very near future. Quite a few of those from out-of-town who secured parcels of land in this tract did so with the expectation of building homes a little later. At the present time there are something like 15 lots left in this tract and these are going rapidly.

JUNIORS SHOW UP IN GOOD CONTESTS

The Juniors defeated the Freshmen in an interclass volley ball game Monday. The snappiest game of the season was played. The Juniors were winners at the junior-senior game and the freshmen were winners at the freshmen-sophomore game. Three games were played. Two were won by the juniors and one by the freshmen. The junior team has brought home laurels to the junior class every game played as yet, and it is expected that they will bring home the championship of the interclass games.

IRISH FREE STATE BEING SET UP NOW

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The government machinery of the Irish free state was being set up today. King George, Premier Lloyd George, Viscount Fitzalan, viceroy of Ireland, and the British cabinet conferred on the facts to be embodied in the king's speech to parliament December 14, when he submits the treaty between Britain and Ireland for ratification. The possibility of appointment of Lord Fitzalan as governor general of the new dominion also was made a subject for speculation.

COLORADO SCHOOL

English Department

The English Department is, necessarily, the largest in the High School, since this subject is the most fundamental, the basis of all the other studies. Of the total enrollment of about 1,200 students, nearly 1,100 are enrolled in the English classes. There are 41 classes taught by nine different teachers, eight of whom give all their time to English. In addition to the regular courses, this department has charge of the school plays, debates, and oratorical contests, and it provides about three "pay assemblies" each year, that is, endeavors to bring to the students, for a nominal price, some particularly inspiring literary program, or some famous literary person, whom, otherwise, they would not have an opportunity to hear. For the last two years, the department has used the observance of "Good English Week" as a means of stressing the importance and strengthening the motives for studying this subject.

The regular English courses have a divided aim and a correspondingly divided content. There are the practical subjects, including grammar and composition, practical public speaking and journalism. The aim of these courses is to teach the mastery of the English language for the practical uses of life. The slogan of the department is a quotation from George Herbert Palmer: "He alone is a well-educated person who can use his language with power and beauty."

Since English is compulsory for three years, even the students who fail must be retained in the classes, and special provision is made for them. There are sometimes students who have little linguistic ability or taste, though they may be very capable in some other lines; or who come from other states where the schools are less efficient, or who come from families where the parents, and, consequently, the children, "don't see no use in grammar." These students take their work in separate classes where they can receive individual attention, and no part of the course requires so much of patient reasonableness and humanness in its presentation as the Special English.

Then there is the cultural aim; the hope of developing in the students a love of good reading, and the power to discriminate between what is really good, whether it be old or new, and what is loose, careless, or inartistic in style, and cheap, sensational, or essentially false in content. So, out of the whole wonderful heritage of English speaking people, a few pieces of literature are chosen to be read by the classes, not to be analyzed and picked to pieces, but to be understood, appreciated, and enjoyed. Besides the literature read in class, there is a list of about 350 titles from which the student chooses other books to read by himself and make reports on to the teacher. The results from this part of the English course are not so tangible, but they are even more deeply important and valuable. What a boy or girl reads changes the habit of his thinking, the very structure of his mind and soul. The young person who does not read much of what is good is missing one of the greatest forces for his mental and spiritual growth. From books he may get quick but unsatisfying and even thrilling entertainment; unconscious acquisition of good vocabulary and power of expression; information about other ages and places; knowledge of other people's lives; and understanding of their thoughts and motives; the development of the imagination; the enrichment of the emotional life; all intangible values, but more vital than any material success.

Values in Latin

Does the time and energy expended by a pupil upon the study of Latin repay him for his efforts? Yes, by all means. He not only gains a better knowledge of English grammar by the mastery of a high inflected language and a greater appreciation of words, but lays the foundation for the learning of all romance languages and of science.

The best use of English is not attained without knowing the sources of the mother tongue. Nearly half of it is Latin, and the better we know the Latin, then, the better can we use our English. One has a sense of satisfaction in hearing such a word as "janitor" if he knows its history. The Latin word for door is "janua" and the man who guarded it was called "janitor." The meaning of the word has gradually grown until it means a general caretaker of a building.

Our language contains a large number of Latin words which have been unchanged since the time of the Romans. Some of these are: circus (meaning a circle in Latin), victor, orator, maximum, minimum, and ultimatum. Many words have come to us in the form of abbreviations: A. M., for ante meridiem, before noon; P. M., for post meridiem, after noon; cf., for confer, compare; i. e., for id est, that is; vs. for versus, against.

Latin is not a dead language; it has only changed its name. The spoken Latin of the Romans has never ceased to exist, for it is the language of France, Spain, Italy, Roumania, and all romance countries. It is interesting to note the similarity between the Latin "generals," the Spanish "general," the Italian "generale," the French "général," and the English "general," and many other such words. The wider and deeper one's preparation in Latin, the more sound and effective romance scholar he will be.

The scientific world is greatly indebted to Latin for its terminology. When anything new is invented or discovered in science we do not go to the Anglo-Saxon for a name but to the Latin or Greek. The student carries his Latin into Chemistry, Botany, Physiology, and Physics classes. He knows that the symbol "Ag." in Chemistry comes from argentum, silver, that the auditory canal (from Latin audio, hear) is that which leads to the ear; that germination comes from germinare, to sprout; that calorie comes from Latin color, heat, a heat unit. Thus he saves both time and energy.

In our high school we have a four year Latin course with one hundred and eighty-eight pupils enrolled in the different classes. In addition to the mastery of the grammar of the language we read some of the finest literature which has ever been written. The pupils are encouraged to bring to class any words, phrases or expressions of Latin origin which they find in newspapers and magazines. An effort is made to correlate Latin with other subjects in the curriculum and to show how closely it is associated with our every day life.

JOURNALISM

By PAUL E. WEBB

The purpose of journalism, as a phase of the English course in the high school, is to increase the student's effectiveness in the use of written composition, to further his ability to think for himself, and to give him a sound basis for judging the relative values of current news stories. The student is admitted into the class only after having satisfactorily completed two or three years of the regular English course. However, the journalism work differs considerably from that to which he has been accustomed. A natural motive for good work is here introduced in the form of the school paper, "The Explosion," which is written and edited entirely by the journalism class. The student now feels that he is writing for a definite purpose—not for some benefit to be realized in the future. The teacher is not now the person that must be satisfied; the writer's own fellow-students are his most severe critics. Ability receives its reward, not only in good grades, but what is more gratifying to the student, advancement to positions of trust on the staff of the paper.

When it is realized that the class must write from 6,000 to 8,000 words a week, revise the copy, write the necessary headlines, correct the proofs and make up the paper, it will be evident that the students are as suming a great responsibility, in which everyone must do his part, or the paper for that week is a failure. Punctuality, accuracy, good English, and a good sense of relative values are the prime essentials necessary to carry out these details satisfactorily. An attractive, well balanced, and newsy paper is the objective for each week's work.

In the editorial column the student tries his hand in the expression of his opinion on matters of general interest to the student body. He learns to know the power of the written idea and to use it. In connection with this, the best newspapers of the country are studied with the purpose of judging their relative merits. In this day when the newspapers and magazines are doing most of the thinking for the majority of the American people, creating a monopoly on ideas, as it were—it is well that we train our young people to think for themselves. If journalism served no purpose other than that, its place in the curriculum would be well justified, for in such thinking and in such ability in judging relative values, lies the foundation of good citizenship.

A. B. C.—ALWAYS BE CAREFUL

By ROBERT T. A-5, Columbus School

The way to be careful is not always easy. You have to look out wherever you go.

When you walk across a street you have to look on both sides of you to see if there are any automobiles coming.

If you are in a big building when it catches on fire you do not want

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF A WAX DOLL

By MURIEL BERG, 4th Colorado School

I was put into a large box with a great many other dolls and I tumbled about and had a very long ride. Soon the cover was taken off of the box and I saw the gray head of an elderly man. As I was on the top he took me out first, examined me, and took me to a gray haired woman with a very kind face, and said, "Pretty doll, eh? I will put her in the window now."

The next day a little golden-haired child came running down the street. She stopped all of a sudden and stood staring at me. While she was standing there a tall woman came up to her and said, "How beautiful, may I have her, nurse?" The lady said she would have to ask her mother about it. Tears came into the blue eyes of the child but she said, "All right, Nurse."

The next day she came again, but, smiling this time. She came with a lady too, but not with the same one that I saw with her the day before. They came in the store and the lady said, "How much is that doll in the window?" The lady with the gray hair answered, "Twelve dollars." The child's face fell and she started to walk out of the store, but just then her mother said, "I'll take it." The child ran back and said, "Mother, you're a dear." She named me May.

A few months later she got a baby sister, so she did not play with me much any more. I felt very sad but I still kept my smile. One day while Betty was playing with baby in the nursery her mother came in with me and said, "Betty, why don't you play with May anymore?" Betty's face fell the same as it did that day in the store. "I am very sorry Mother, but I was so interested in baby that I forgot all about her. I'll play with her lots and lots. The next day she made me a dear little blue silk dress and a blue silk hat to match. Her mother made me a pair of beautiful blue shoes and some blue socks. She took me to some wonderful woods with many of her little friends. They all had dolls. One of them had a large basket under one arm and a doll under the other. I could not think what could be in that basket. At last they opened it and took out a clean white cloth and spread it on the grass, and they had a little picnic. After having a delightful day they returned home and Betty put me in a nice fresh bed and I sailed off to dreamland.

to run. If you do run you may knock some one down and they may get burned to death.

If you are a boy do not try to catch on the back of trucks or try to get on moving street cars. If you are riding a bicycle do not try to get across the street in front of a car, but wait until it goes by then go across.

SPECIAL ENGLISH

Most students who fail in English dislike the subject. Repeatedly giving a certain kind of medicine which is distasteful, however beneficial it may be, does not serve to create a liking for it; on the other hand, giving it in a different form need in no wise lessen its virtue. After failing an English course once, a student is not likely to develop any great enthusiasm for it the second time over, after whatever interest newness may have once given it has been worn off.

There are certain minimum essentials of correctness in speaking and writing which are pretty generally agreed upon; and a familiarity with some examples of good literature is desirable for its value in forming ideals, insight into life, pleasure, and for the improvement it may give of thought and expression. There is, however, no set method nor particular text book which must be used in order to gain these principles of rhetoric; nor do certain masterpieces have a corner on all the value to be derived from the study of literature. The purpose of the "Special English" classes is to give the required medicine in a new form; teach the principles from a different book, from a different angle; paying particular attention to the individual needs of the student; choosing books for reading, according to the interests of those we are trying to help. The work is so divided that if a pupil is weak in composition and grammatical usage, but good in literature, he may take the work in the quarter which meets his needs. Perhaps the chief value of "Special English" lies in its elasticity and adaptability. To be most beneficial the classes should be small, to admit of the greatest possible individual attention and personal touch.

We find that most of the "Special English" pupils are "passing," and are expressing a gratifying interest and profit in the work.

THE ANT AND THE SPIDER

(An Original Poem.) By DOROTHY LESLIE, Columbus School

Under a violet crept a wee ant,
Out of the dampness to shelter himself.

Under the violet all in a heap,
Sat Mr. Spider so soundly asleep.
The ant was so terribly frightened
And yet
Afraid to fly away lest he should get wet.

Then in a moment he smiled a wee smile.
He took a hold of the violet stem,
Tugged and tugged until it toppled in two.

Held on it tightly then gaily he flew.
The spider awoke and loudly lamented
And that's how umbrellas first were invented.

The Place of the Three R's in the Public School

By Annie L. McIntyre, Principal, Central Avenue School

The criticism is sometimes made that reading, language, spelling, writing and arithmetic are neglected in the schools nowadays, and that not enough time is given to the study of the so-called solid subjects. As a matter of fact, they receive more than three-fourths of the time.

When we stop to consider that when a little child goes to school he cannot read at all and that he knows nothing about it, it is quite wonderful that at the end of four or five weeks he is able to begin the reading of a primer. Enough of the power to sound words, and to put thought into the printed page, has been developed so that he is able to help himself. He reads four or five primers in four and a half months.

The study of language and spelling is very closely related to the study of reading. Story-telling, dramatizing, memorizing and the playing of language games are all in use.

Along with this, the study of the art of writing—the most difficult of all subjects to learn—is begun. Do you realize what a difficult thing writing is with its loops and curves and slants, small letters and capital letters, letters alone and letters joined to other letters? Much attention is of the English course—oral and written composition, and lays the foundation for habits that will function in all lines of school endeavor.—Lewis and Rowland.

A child should be taught to live and respect his language. Great care is taken in the teaching of memory work so that the child is taught to appreciate a beautiful poem and not to hate it. We teach from six to eight poems in each grade.

How we drill and drill upon the correct use of punctuation marks! A few sentences or a paragraph are written nearly every day, and the child is made to correct his mistakes. A little red spider no larger than a period is very interesting to a child. But periods, question marks, commas, and quotation marks are all dead things. Interest in them must be acquired. Please take time to read some of the articles that were written by our children and are published in our daily papers this week.

Spelling is taught daily. Children are taught to spell the words in common use.

Numbering is begun in the first grade. Numbering, with a adding, subtracting and multiplying—are taught in the second grade. Long division is developed in the fourth grade. These fundamental processes are applied in the remainder of the grammar grades. From 45 to 60 minutes are given to this subject, daily, in the upper grades.

There is a difference between knowledge about and knowledge of a subject. How long must you watch another drive an automobile before you can drive one yourself? You may know all the movements, but unless you know how to use them you will not get far. A child may be able to repeat the multiplication tables, but unless he can use them it amounts to nothing—mere parroting. Because he thinks he knows that part of arithmetic, when he only knows something about it. Accuracy in arithmetic is most important. So, in arithmetic, as in written language, the child must correct his mistakes, and much drill is given.

Visit our schools and see for yourself what is being done. If you cannot come this week, come any time. You are always welcome.

EARLY SCHOOLS OF CALIFORNIA

By DOROTHY HASKINS, A-6 Pacific School

When California was first settled the children did not have the opportunities to go to school that we have today. The only educated people were the padres and the officers sent from Spain to train the soldiers. At the missions, the padres taught the Indians reading and writing, religious services and songs. They were so busy converting and teaching the Indians that they had no time to teach the children.

In 1846 the first American school was opened in Santa Clara by Mrs. Oliver Mann Isbell. It was held in a room of the Santa Clara mission. The ground was the floor, and the seats were made of boxes. There was an opening in the center of the roof, where the smoke escaped when they had a fire on cold or rainy days. A pile of stones was the only stove they had.

In 1878 they organized a kindergarten. The teacher taught the children not to steal the Italian fruits and vegetables and not to break windows. The first kindergarten was started on Silver street in the Tar Flats. The first kindergarten teacher's name was Kate Douglas Wiggen, one of America's best loved writers.

Now in the state there are normal schools, state and many other universities and colleges; also many free private schools; and in every little community there is a school so that every child, no matter how poor, can secure an education.

We should all be very grateful that in such a short time we have been able to have such a fine system of public schools as we have today.

It doesn't take the average man long to throw off the greatness that is thrust upon him.

'The Three R's'

Commercial Department

Business and society are now realizing as never before, the need of efficient men and women—those with skilled and trained minds, as the business of the world becomes more that of directive energy. The demand now is as imperative for a business training for college as a college training for business. The Commercial Department of our high school seeks to provide courses too definite to attract students who should choose the elective courses and too difficult for the pupil who is too indolent or lacking in zeal to prepare to enter into serious business relations.

If education means anything it means increase in efficiency. Efficiency is not secured through shortcuts, training gained by quick methods. In order to secure the best results in education there must be time for the growth and development of the pupil. He must have time and thought to enlarge his vision and to establish his standards and his ideals as well as for the acquisition of facts. For this reason, the regular commercial course, like the other high school courses, covers a period of four years; although the student may be fitted in a shorter time to take a responsible position as bookkeeper or stenographer, yet if possible for him to complete the four years' course, he may so arrange his work that he may also prepare for college in case he should later decide to attend. It is obvious that a thorough school student who has a thorough training in shorthand and typewriting would have an advantage over the student who had not this training so far as his own college work is concerned, and if necessary he could use this training to assist in paying his college expenses, as such work is always in demand.

"Reading"—It is generally conceded that one of the most important accomplishments in life is the ability to grasp rapidly the thought from the written page. This art is absolutely essential in the business world today is done by correspondence. An error in interpreting the mind of the correspondent or author of a communication may prove a fatality to a business interest.

The commercial training tends to promote clear and accurate thought, which is one of the prime ends of a true education. In order to be properly fitted to enter the commercial world one must know the thought of the leaders in the different commercial enterprises; otherwise one would be a mere automaton, and thus would be unfit to take his place in the social world as well as lacking in efficiency in the business world.

The aim of our high school courses is to fit our students to become useful members of society and not mere wage earners, and in order to do this we emphasize the importance of being able to interpret the written and printed page.

"Rit'n"—The ability to clothe one's thoughts in words that will convey the correct meaning is no less important in the commercial world than the art of interpreting thought. In order to do this it is essential to punctuate correctly, spell and properly syllabify words. This accomplishment is no less appreciated in the social world, but is absolutely essential in the commercial world.

Their lack in this respect has brought perhaps more criticism upon our average high school student graduate than inefficiency in any other way. The commercial department of our high school puts the emphasis upon the importance of the students being able to express themselves accurately either with the pen or the typewriter, or both.

"Rithmetic" or Rapid Calculation.—This subject is by many considered a lost art. It is true that there has not been as much stress put upon this science as the pedagogues of the passing generation gave it. Our present-day method is to make the subject more practical for our every day need, rather than to stimulate the mind in reasoning processes as in former days. There are advantages and disadvantages in the change of methods. But in our commercial course the mind is stimulated by the drills in rapid calculation, and our bookkeeping courses develop the reasoning as well as to make a practical use of all the fundamental principles of this not-to-be-neglected "R."

A BABY'S LULLABY

(An Original Poem)
By RUTH BECKER, B-4

The sun has gone, dear,
The dark has come,
And now that day is done, dear,
A restful night will come.

Choliest dreams of Fairyland,
Forest, dark and wild;
Sweet dreams of music,
Then morning comes, my child.

All the day for laughing,
Playing all the day;
Cooing, kicking, rolling,
Is the way you spend the day.

Now it is nighttime,
Let us go to rest,
All the little baby birds
Are now at rest.

One man believes everything he hears; another doesn't believe anything he hears. Both are foolish.

SKINNY'S GANG

(An Original Story)
By JAMES MOFFETT, A-7
Intermediate School

Six small boys sat on boxes and broken stools in Skinny Wilson's barn one Saturday afternoon. In an old rocking chair sat Skinny, the captain. It had been decided by the gang to sleep in their small hut but they had built the hut on the previous Saturday, and were very anxious to sleep in it.

The following Saturday found the gang at the hut. They were all working, or doing something to improve it.

In a short time Skinny had things ready for dinner, as he was to act as cook.

"Where are those matches?" yelled Skinny at the top of his voice. "I forgot them and left them at Ted's house!" cried Bob, as he came running up.

"Now you've gone and put us in a hole," said Skinny, "and you'll have to go back after 'em." So, without arguing, Bob started down the mountain side.

Ted's house was quite a distance from the camp so it took Bob some time to go down and back again.

At last he came straggling into camp. The hours passed quickly in the afternoon, and before they knew it it was time for supper. After supper they built a camp fire and sat around it. They told stories about Indians, ghosts and pirates.

At last they all turned in and in order to have plenty of fresh air, Dick left the door open.

They were all sleeping peacefully until about one o'clock, a low moaning sound echoed through the still night air.

"What's that?" whispered Dick. "I don't know," whispered Ted, his teeth chattering, as it was very cold in the mountains at this time of night.

Again the time it woke the other slumbering boys, who sat upright in their beds with startled looks on their faces. Then stealthy footsteps sounded outside the open door. It came closer, and now a twig snapped, and a dark object emerged from the brush and turned in the direction of the hut. Then Skinny became brave, although he did not know that the immense dark object was nearing the hut.

"I am going out and run that thing away from here," whispered Skinny. He crept out of the doorway into the pale moonlight. He did not see anything at first, but all of a sudden the mysterious object came around the corner of the house and bumped into Skinny. The boy gave a yell and ran into the house at top speed.

"Run for your lives!" he yelled. "A big dragon knocked me down, bit my hand off, and chased me in here. He is as big as a mountain."

He started to dash out of the door, but he didn't get far because the thing that was causing all the excitement pushed his head into the door and uttered a loud "moo-moo," and at that they all tried to jump out of the window and through the roof or any way to get out. After they were all outside, and no one hurt, they saw a lazy cow come out of the hut. After it was all over they tried to lay the blame on Skinny.

"Well, anyway, Ted and Shadow were so scared they tore their way through the roof and I will make them fix it tomorrow morning," said Skinny. And with that they all went back into the hut and were soon sleeping as peacefully as ever.

ENGLISH

One of the chief aims of secondary education, as well as of all education, is to train the individual to live with other individuals. People can not come in contact with other people without interchanging thoughts and ideas. This is natural, and very fortunately it is natural. Of what good to the world is a thought, an idea, or an opinion, if selfishly retained within the mind of the person creating it?

Our duty then, as educators, does not stop with training the mind to think (although this must be the first step) but goes on further to train the person to express. The crying need of the present day is for expression. Self expression is the door through which noble thoughts and wise opinions pass into the world. Let us, then, see that that door is opened and that there are no obstructions in the way.

Ninety-nine times out of a hundred we express ourselves orally. How important it is, then, that our girls and boys be taught to speak correctly. Whether they intend to enter the business of the social world, it makes no difference. In whatever walk of life they find themselves, this one thing is certain—they must speak. Since speaking is inevitable, how much better then, to make it an asset rather than a detriment.

Taking it up from a business standpoint, a man who can express himself clearly and effectively has an advantage over another man with equal or even greater ability who fails to express himself with the same clearness and ease. This is true, whether the men in question are salesmen, engineers, lawyers, or business men. It is not enough to think, we must be able to express our thoughts.

If this is true in the business world, it is equally true in the social world. There people judge us by what we say, and particularly how we say it. If our speech is slovenly, we will never gain entrance to the society of worth-while people or command their respect; even though our dress be perfect.

Educators all over the world have recognized the value of correct speech and schools and colleges all over the country are now emphasizing the importance of this work. But the place to begin is in the grammar and high schools. It is easier to form a good habit than it is to break a bad one.

Glendale High School has lined up with all the other progressive systems in stressing the necessity of clear and forceful speech and offers a variety of courses, adapted to the needs of different students. Our aim is not for drill and polish a few for public performances, but to help the students as a whole to express themselves more freely. Sometimes we have to go further and awaken with the student a desire to express, but usually our problem is with the pupil who says, "I have it in my head, but can't explain it." Our aim, although perhaps not entirely realized as yet, is to reach all the students and give them what they need. To do this, the following courses are offered:

An elementary public speaking or oral English course, where the fundamentals of speaking are studied and practiced. It is encouraging to see, how, in two months' time, a hesitant, wavering, stammering boy or girl can stand on his or her feet and speak clearly and intelligently on a subject for five or ten minutes.

By the time the student has finished his elementary course, he knows which phase of the work interests him most. He can then branch off in two ways: He may either enter an advanced class of expression and interpretation, where voice work is stressed and individual voice defects are overcome, or he may take up advanced public speaking, debating, and oratory.

Then there is the dramatic side of the work which some people claim to be the most helpful of all. It is educational, in that it teaches an appreciation of good literature. In the dramatic class plays are studied, analyzed, and acted. In this way, school dramatics, an important activity, is not only handled easily, but the student's taste for good plays is developed.

All of these courses aim at the same thing—to aid expression. But some students are reached in different ways from others—hence the different courses. Some are more advanced than others, and, therefore, need more advanced work.

The value of such work can best be judged by its results in debating, oratorical contests, plays, and above all, the progress of boys and girls in that fundamental process of clear speaking.

WHY I AM GLAD TO BE A BOY SCOUT

By CHARLES KAUSEN
Columbus School

The reason I like to be a Boy Scout is because the Scoutmaster teaches the boys to be true to their country and to have clean pure thoughts.

When vacation comes we go on camps, hikes and trips. Sometimes we go to the beach and sometimes we go to the mountains. I surely feel fine to get up real early in the morning and cook bacon and eggs for breakfast.

When we are at the ocean the Scoutmaster takes the boys with him in a row boat.

We all get in the boat, one right on top of the other, and the boat nearly tips over.

Other times the boys go swimming in ocean, lakes and streams. It was not long ago we went down to the beach for a couple of days. The first thing we did was to pitch tents. After we got that done we went in swimming. There was an old row boat. All of the boys got in it and started to rocking it, and the first thing we knew it tipped over. While of us had to swim ashore. While of us had to swim ashore. While of us had to swim ashore. While of us had to swim ashore.

SULPHUR CLEARS PIMPLY SKIN

Apply Sulphur as Told When Your Skin Breaks Out

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickest by applying Menthosulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Menthosulphur and use it like cold cream.—Adv.

I am thankful for my doll;
I am thankful for my daddy dear,
And my lively parrot poll.

I am thankful for my hoop

And for the gravel walk where I
Can run it up and down.

I am thankful for the wild birds' song,

For rain and snow, and grass and tree,
And sun and stars and moon.

If I should talk and talk and talk

Name all the ways God gives to me
His faithful, tender good.

I thank him daily for
His gifts so kind and dear;
And for good measure I give thanks

But if I should just thank and thank
For days and days and days,
His good would keep ahead of me
In half a thousand ways.

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

I hate to brag about myself. But if any one ever honestly won the degree of D. D.—Doctor of Domesticity—I am the person. One of my prescriptions has cured a case of household disagreement of long standing and saved me a mighty good clerk.

"My wife and I aren't getting along," said John Thomas, with a lump so far up his throat that it threatened to choke him. "We love each other—anyhow, I love her—but we fight like cats and dogs."

So I looked into it. John wasn't worth a nickel a week to me as he stood, and I had told him so. I had assumed that he had been jangling himself to death, and said so, roughly in a loud and arrogant tone. I gave him just a week to get right or get out. But when I found out the trouble my inborn desire to mess about in other people's affairs led me to try to set things right.

The trouble was John's mother and John's maiden aunts and John's sisters. He had always been a model son, nephew and brother, and it was their firm conviction that no girl on earth was worthy to shine his shoes for him. They used to drop into John's little flat every day or so and give his poor little wife the basilisk eye, and every now and then, especially if John were looking, one of them would say:

"No, no, NO! That isn't the way to do it! My patience, sakes! Here! Let me show you how!"

So they would take the duster or the needle or the frying pan, or whatever it was, out of the wife's hands and show her how. If she did things right they indicated by their manner that it was just her hideous craft. She was fooling that poor boy. One of these days he would come to his senses. I am certain that in the privacy of their bereft home they referred to her as "that hussy," just because she wears her skirts, thank Fortune, considerably shorter than they wear theirs.

"You move," I said to John. "Go out in the country, two miles from a car line, and buy a Ford. Then your folks cannot get to you so often. Try that for six months and report."

Did it work? I'll say it worked. John and his wife have found each other, and I've saved a mighty good clerk. Am I, or am I not, a perfectly good D. D.?

ITALY LAYS CLAIM TO MOTHER CHURCH

Bitter Diplomatic Fight Dwindles Down to Two Opposing Churches

ROME—(by mail)—Italy is counting upon the support of all the Latin nations to maintain her claim on behalf of Latin Christianity to the custody of Jerusalem of the Cenacolo—the "mother church of all churches."

The bitter diplomatic fight that is now being waged for the permanent custody of this cradle of the Christian religion has now narrowed down to whether it shall pass into the hands of a Latin Christian nation, or into that of the Greek orthodox state. Failing of one or the other of these solutions, the Cenacolo will remain a Moslem mosque.

The final awarding of the custody of the Holy Place will rest largely with the League of Nations. In the meantime no stone is being left unturned either by the Latin Christian interests or those of the Greek Orthodox church to secure for themselves this definite recognition of their respective religious supremacy in the near East.

Italy's historic claims as the rightful custodian of the Cenacolo antedate those of any other nation. The Cenacolo at Jerusalem was the first building which Christ definitely consecrated as a church. It was in this first church—"this mother church of all churches" as it is known—that Christ further instituted the Euchar-

COLLEGE GIRL TO HELP SOCIETY OUT

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Through the influence of the college girl a change for the better will be brought about in the character of society, in the opinion of President Henry Noble MacCracken, of Vassar, who has been addressing alumnae meetings in Chicago. The college girl, according to Dr. MacCracken, will not be content with perpetual frivolity.

"Too much frivolity bores the college girl," said Dr. MacCracken. "She will not tolerate the unwholesome things in society life. And because she has been trained to be a leader she will do away with them."

Dr. MacCracken said the college girl will substitute pleasure and culture for frivolity and speed.

"If girls are to be happy," he declared, "they must have something more to think about than style."

Money talks, but there is not enough of it in the world to take the place of a woman.

ist, created the priesthood and it was also there that Peter began his mission. Finally it was in this little church that the Virgin Mary fell asleep and died. These at least are the facts set forth by the tradition of the church.

When Jerusalem fell into the hands of the Muslims they respected the importance of the little church as a Christian monument and it was not at first transformed into a mosque. Then the sultans of the city, Roberto and Sancia d'Anjou finally secured from the Sultan of Egypt the definite possession and custody of the Cenacolo.

It is upon this fact that Italy bases her claims to the right of custody.

BRITISH BISHOP IS SEEING GREAT WAR AMONG RACES

World Conflict Unless Christian Principles Are Made to Underlie

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The dread picture of a world war in which the yellow races of the East will strive for domination with the white people of the West was painted by the Bishop of Chelmsford recently in a sermon to the English Church Congress at Birmingham.

"Do you know," he asked, "that the whole of the Christian community in England, the Church and the Non-conformist bodies together, gave in a year toward spiritual work what was less than would keep the British Army in the field for six hours."

"This country last year," he added, "spent $1,800,000,000 in drink, more than $400,000,000 in tobacco, and only $12,000,000 on foreign missions."

"I am not a pessimist, but in a few years we shall have a peril moving out from Asia, from China, from India, and Japan. What is going to be the result God alone knows."

"The next war will be the yellow against the white races. Think of the last war and its horrors! It will pale into insignificance before a war of color!"

"There is nothing that can prevent such a war except that the principles of Christianity be made to underlie international and national life. If the world does not give its sons and daughters to the cause of the Church I venture to predict your grandchildren will have to fight in this great world war of color."

"Only Christ can cement the nations. The true solution," concluded the Bishop, "lies, not at the Conference in Washington, or at the Councils of London and Paris, but on Calvary."

SHANGHAI, China, Dec. 6.—Dr. A. L. Shelton, the missionary who was captured by the Yunnan bandits last year and sensationally rescued by an American searching party, has returned to China after a rest in America, and is on his way to Lhasa to become court physician to supreme head of the Buddhist church in China, the Dalai Lama, who believes himself to be the reincarnation of Buddha.

While in America Dr. and Mrs. Shelton supplied themselves with quantities of pocket knives, cheap watches, agate marbles and strings of shell pearl beads to be used as presents along the dangerous journey which he is undertaking for the interior and through the country where he was held a captive for sixty-two days and underwent much suffering. Previous experience has taught him that these small articles are most attractive to the average Tibetan official or priest, and presents are an indispensable thing in all Tibetan traveling.

The trip he is making is full of almost insurmountable difficulties and is through the wildest parts of China and Tibet, where the bandits are in control and where there is constant warfare.

Mrs. Shelton will not accompany her husband. She is en route to India, where she will publish the story of "Esther" in the Tibetan language.

CHIPS BEAVER'S CRAFTY ELOPEMENT

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Chips Beaver had come back to the Secret Pond, back to Ripple, the young beaver as pretty as her name who was faithfully waiting for him. He was so eager to find her and show her their nice new home he fairly galloped, splashing and snorting, up to the dam.

"Crack!" How well he knew the sound! It's the warping his mother, the wise old Beaver Sentinel, slaps with her tail on the smooth water behind the Sentinel's Stone. Then every one hides. So she was the first to see him. And wasn't she pleased and proud of him?

She made him tell all his adventures. She was quite horrified at some of his friends, especially Watch the Dog, and the two little boys who had mended his broken dam. She made him describe just where he had built his house and how he turned the Little Dark Pool into his Pond.

And wasn't he proud of the way she admired him? But not pleased a bit. "Crack-crack!" He knew what that meant. She was calling the beavers together. She thought he'd sit up and brag to them of the wonderful things he'd done. That's very different from telling your own mother. So for once the wise old Sentinel made a mistake.

She could see dozens of beavers heads in the silvery waves like leaf-boats blown down by the wind, all sailing toward her, wondering what she could have to tell them. But she couldn't pick out any one from any other of them. Chips could—was it because the smiley old moon was still helping him?

He sailed out to meet it. "Ripple," he whispered, "come on." Then he whisked about and went gliding along just like the rest of them. But he never turned at the stone. He sailed straight to the dam and slipped softly over the edge of it. And as he swooped down the slide the ducks had so much trouble to climb, something soft, and warm, and gaily, bumped into him. Then two sets of dancy feet lifted off down the Tricky Little Stream.

When they reached the broken sapling, Chips chuckled. "It's a mean trick to play, but—our home is our very own! I made it for us. I'm never going to show it to the rest of them."

And Ripple purred happily. "Our very own home! Show it to me as quick as ever we can get there!" Back at the Secret Pond the other beavers swam round and round hunting in vain for Chips. It was a long, long time before they knew he and his sweetheart had eloped right under their very noses.

THE CUT DIRECT

By JOHN BRECK.

A long while ago, before the postal authorities snapped its line, a certain firm offered the public the glittering bait of "A Sure Secret of Success" for the modern sum of $1. Its reply read, simply, and solely: "Fish for suckers, as we do." But, of course, the investor got some thrill of uncertainty out of his nibble.

At a public fish pond he can get a sure thing for half the price. Its pools are thronged, not with suckers, to be sure, but with beautiful rainbow trout, all sizes from spring-hatched fry to great polka-dotted breeders, some sixteen inches long. The largest enclosure holds lively two year olds. Into it you can drop a line at 50 cents per drop and haul out one. The bored youngsters, eager for new adventure, shoulder each other for the privilege of biting. If you did miss, you need only dabble your fingers and they swim into your hand. Wherever you walk they follow, nosing the bank like a bunch of friendly shoats. So like, indeed, you find yourself wondering why they don't grunt.

But this isn't fishing. Fishing really begins when you mark down a fishy-looking stream, the kind you'd live in if you were a fish. You fish in anticipation while you await a leisure day, fit up your tackle, speculate on wind and weather, before you finally tread its banks in battle array. You consider what your prey are feeding on, pick a fly to match, in delightful uncertainty whether you are right or wrong, and then—

When then you merely await the swift denouement. It may be the kind you reinforce with a strip of bacon to make a meal, or it may be the monster who breaks away. But it thrills you because you are all wrought up to the pitch of expectancy by the absorbing intricacies of a deep-laid plot. To make a sure case in a graded pool is like glancing at the last chapter of a "sunshine" novel, mostly to see how the characters are named so you can talk about it.

Do people do it? Aye, my friend, they do. It is a flourishing institution, with gravelled walks and well-kept buildings where the fisherman may recuperate from his exertions while his catch is being broiled in the kitchen. So does the kingfisher; at these prices if must cost as much to feed him as a dray horse. So does the rat, but more cheaply as he only catches sick ones. Only the management doesn't fish-for-trout.

When a widow gets the idea in her head that she can't live without another man, she hasn't much to live for.

IN THE RAIN

The rain from the eaves comes dripping down,
And it's wet and cold in the field and town,
And the dead leaves fall, and are sere and brown
And the day is dreary, dreary.

The bleak north wind blows, chill and strong,
And the drip of the rain has a mournful song,
And the day without you seems so long,
So long and gray and weary.

And once was a day that was fair and fine,
When you sat near with your hand in mine,
And we felt a thrill like the warmth of wine,
And the day was cheery, cheery.

When the hours danced by with tripping feet
Till the dusk, like love, made the day complete,
And even the drip of the rain was sweet,
And never a day was dreary.

So how can the heart of me forget,
When the rain is sobbing, sobbing yet,
And my cheek, like the world out there, is wet,
And the dusk with its dreams is eerie.

And still comes the north wind, chill and strong,
And still drips the rain with its mournful song,
And the day without you seems so long,
So long and gray and weary.

And a vesper bell rings, dong, ding, dong,
Somewhere—in my heart—in the sobbing song
Of the rain and the day is gray and long
Without you, Sweet, my Dearie!

St. Louis.—There are 47,066 native white Missourians who are illiterate, of whom 42,614 are 21 years old and over and 4452 are between the ages of 10 and 21, according to compilations of the Bureau of Census for 1920. The per cent of the native white residents of the state of Missouri, ten years old and over, are illiterate. In addition to native white illiterates there are 17,669 foreign-born residents and 18,528 negroes. The total for the state is 83,403, or three per cent of the population, 1910 was 111,116. The percentage of illiteracy is 3 per cent for 1920 against 4.2 per cent for 1910. The census bureau classifies as illiterate any person 10 years old and over who is unable to write English, or any other language, irrespective of the ability to read.

Evanson.—War against jazz music will open here at the woman's club, Chicago avenue and Church street, where the first of a series of family parties is to be held. Upon order of Mrs. Robert Berry Ennis, president, acting upon the wishes of club members, the orchestra will not play jazz music. The campaign was recently initiated at a meeting of the 300 Northwestern co-eds, club women and officials, when Mrs. Marx Oberndorfer, chairman of the music committee of the General Federation of the Women's Clubs of the United States gave a scathing denunciation of jazz music and jazz dancing.

GREAT INTEREST IN NEW MAXWELL

Salesmen With Public All
"Pepped Up" With
New Model

"In all my experience in the automobile business I have never witnessed such enthusiasm as has been manifested in the new Maxwells," declared E. V. Jellison of the J. and R. Service, local agency of the good Maxwell.

"Perhaps, the outstanding feature of the Maxwell display is the unstinted praise that has been accorded the car by various distributors, dealers and salesmen of other automobile companies," said Jellison. "All who have witnessed the Maxwells have remarked that they are 'knockouts' not only due to the beautiful lines of the car, but more so because of the remarkably low price."

"The new Maxwell's popularity has spread like wild-fire. It, apparently, is exactly the type of car and with the price in accordance, that the motoring public has been waiting for. Scores of the new cars have been sold already and we anticipate the heaviest sale ever accorded a new automobile model."

"Distinctly different from any previous Maxwell people who have seen the new 'jobs' simply cannot believe their eyes. There are numerous features to the new models, but the beautiful and different body lines and the disc steel wheels are undoubtedly the two points which have attracted the wide-spread attention of the local motoring public."

"Even our salesmen are all 'hopped-up' over the demonstrating qualities of the good Maxwell. Although the members of our sales force have known for some time about the various features of the new models, the results of demonstrations have caused them to come back to the Maxwell headquarters chock full of pep. For instance, the salesmen did not give any of the demonstrators a chance to get properly broken in, but pounded them over some of our local try-out bills. The demonstrations prove conclusively that the motor has an abundance of power to go ahead in hand with the beauty of the car and its exceptionally low price."

Durango.—A movement has been started by the Durango exchange, the commercial organization of Durango, for the filming of Mesa National Park. A camera man has been secured and all but about 500 feet of a two-reel picture has already been taken. The remainder of the picture will be taken at once and the film will be in circulation in about three weeks. The title of the new picture will be "Mesa Verde National Park—The Heart of Ancient America."

No Business Section in Glendale Offers Such Wonderful Investment Opportunities

Take Time to Investigate

Mr. Investor, stop just a moment and look into the future of East Broadway. Can you see anything that interests you? Do you realize that up to a short time ago realty prices along the eastern end of Broadway have not nearly kept pace with property values? Do you know that since the east side has "perked up" several hundred thousands of dollars' worth of property has changed hands, and also, do you realize THAT THE DEMAND FOR EAST BROADWAY BUSINESS PROPERTY HAS JUST STARTED?

If you do not realize these things it is about time you put on your observation glasses, for the next real business property activity will surely be along East Broadway. There is really no need of us telling you this. If you will learn the facts and will consider them studiously you will KNOW FOR YOURSELF. Then you will act. But if you do not investigate RIGHT NOW your action may come too late. So let us give you the facts at your very earliest convenience.

Three Reasons Why

A $500,000 hotel is in course of building on the northeast corner of Broadway and Glendale avenue, and a $250,000 theatre and business block is contemplated for the northwest corner of this intersection. Does this, Mr. Investor, mean anything to you? Those who are in a position to know say that the electrifying of the Glendale Avenue line is sure to be effected. This fact alone should be an "earful." These are just three reasons why you should consider East Broadway property. There are others.

Property prices are already on the rise and the fellow who gets in now will reap the benefit of the entire advance. Don't wait and thereby get only half of the "melon." The "buy tomorrow" fellow is always a day too late.

We are on the "inside." Maybe we can tell you a few things that will surprise you.
